HOOVER KEEPS
ARMS PROBLEM TO THE FRONTEMPHASIS WILL BE PUT ON FOREIGN RELATIONS

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
(Copyright 1929, by the Escanaba Press)

Washington, June 24.—Emphasis is to be on foreign policies during the next few weeks that congress is in recess. President Hoover has been trying to concentrate on the armament problem while he has been busy with farm relief and the tariff but now he has a clear field for the all-important negotiations that may mean far-reaching changes in the relations between Europe and the United States.

Mr. Hoover from the beginning has approached the question of foreign relations with a recognition of how vital the economic aspects will be on both sides of the Atlantic. The cutting down of the budgets in Europe is no less a matter of concern here than the possible assistance that will be rendered to the peace movement as a whole if a satisfactory arrangement can be made to limit armament.

Mr. Hoover feels that until an agreement is reached on what constitutes a satisfactory amount of naval protection for each country, there will necessarily be mutual suspicion if not distrust and that as soon as the whole naval question is out of the way further steps may be taken to make the Kellogg anti-war treaties effective.

Gibson Well Informed.

In despatching Ambassador Hugh Gibson from Belgium to confer with Ambassador Dawes in London, the president is working on the theory that what the new American ambassador to Great Britain may lack in technical knowledge of the armament question can readily be supplied by Hugh Gibson, who has been particularly familiar with all details of the naval armament discussion ever since he went to Geneva as the personal envoy of President Coolidge.

In Messrs. Dawes and Gibson the president has two aggressive minds. The assumption is that Mr. Dawes will work out with Premier MacDonald the general principles and that Mr. Gibson will endeavor to line up allies for the idea on the continent. It may be that by the time the British premier visits the United States a practical understanding will have been reached as to the best methods of satisfying public opinion in both Great Britain and the United States.

Want Settlement.

There is little doubt of the underlying desire on the part of both countries to settle the armament question once for all and relieve themselves of the heavy expenditures that already have begun in connection with naval competition. The last conference called by President Coolidge would have been a success, it is known, except for the navalists; who were able to influence the British ministry. The labor party, however, is not likely to listen to extreme viewpoints from the naval contingent and is much more likely to follow a conciliatory course which will lead to an agreement.

It is presumed also that once the United States and Great Britain have agreed, the other naval powers will concur in the plan whatever it may be, because if the two leading navies are limited it will also be easy for other countries to accept a restriction. There never was a time when the so-called naval element were weaker than they are today in pressing for unlimited navies.

The demand for reduced taxation is stronger abroad than it is in the United States, though the economy policies of Mr. Coolidge are still important in Washington, too.

Hoover Holds Key.

On the whole, Mr. Hoover is glad that the armament question has come to a climax and that the whole world will give it the attention it deserves. With congress away, Mr. Hoover has the stage to himself and that means the unrestrained exercise of public opinion in getting public opinion lined up behind the program to limit armament.

Jensen Planning
Endurance Flight

Roosevelt Field, N. J., June 24 (AP)—Martin Jensen announced tonight that he planned to take off tomorrow afternoon in the monoplane "Three Musketeers" in a new attempt at a refueling endurance record. Jensen said Mrs. Jensen and William Ulbrich would accompany him.

Hoover Busy on Major Problems
Confronting Him

Washington, June 24 (AP)—Refreshed by a week-end at his Blue Ridge Mountain fishing lodge in Virginia, President Hoover today lost no time in getting to his desk to study the governmental problems confronting him.

Foremost among these is the appointment of the federal farm board created by the agricultural relief bill to which he added his signature hardly more than a week ago. In addition a presidential proclamation will be issued tomorrow setting in operation the provisions of the Swing-Johnson Boulder Dam bill.

The president is expected to hold a series of conferences during the next few days upon the personnel of the farm board. Announcement of its selection is looked for either at the end of this week or sometime next week.

LABOR GOV'T TO ELECT SPEAKERFitzroy Slated for Office
as Parliament Reassembles Today

London, June 24 (AP)—The second parliament to sit under a Labor government in the long history of the United Kingdom reassembles tomorrow, but the only business for the day is election of a speaker.

The new government has decided in accordance with general custom, the speakership not being considered a partisan office, to re-elect the speaker of the last parliament. Accordingly Captain Edward A. Fitzroy will be formally proposed for the office he held last year and undoubtedly will be unanimously elected.

Political observers thought that possibly had the Labor party had a majority over all other parties in the house they might have desired of the speakership not being considered a partisan office, to re-elect the speaker of the last parliament. Accordingly Captain Edward A. Fitzroy will be formally proposed for the office he held last year and undoubtedly will be unanimously elected.

Once the speaker is chosen, the house of commons can proceed the following day to swear in its new members. This formality will occupy two days.

To Make Unique Announcement.

One of the most interesting things parliament is expecting to hear is a statement from the premier on what he would consider a vital defeat for the government. As a general rule no public announcement of this kind is made. All questions of confidence being left to be dealt with as occasion arises.

The situation of the Labor government is somewhat different. It does not command a majority of the whole house and the question

OIL MAN JOINS
PALIN JAILHenry Mason Day Starts
4-Months Term for Court Contempt

Washington, June 24 (AP)—Henry Mason Day, of New York City, vice president of the Sinclair Exploration Co., began serving a term of four months in the District of Columbia jail tonight as a penalty for contempt of court through having jurors in the Sinclair-Fall conspiracy trial shadowed.

Coming to the jail alone in a taxicab, Day entered the jail at 6:40 o'clock, while the man he had sought to protect—Harry F. Sinclair—looked through barred windows from the jail at his friend and business associate. Sinclair was committed May 6 to serve three months for contempt of the senate and is serving six months concurrently with that sentence on the jury shadowing charge.

Jumping out of the taxicab with a smile on his face, Day turned to a score of photographers and said, "Boys, I know you have been waiting all day for me. Take all the time you want. I have all the time in the world but—"

Denies Wrong-Doing.

As Day entered the jail accompanied by United States Deputy Marshal John J. Carlson, who had the commitment papers, he handed a prepared statement to newspaper men in which he said he was not conscious of having "committed any wrongful act" and denied that anything he had done with Mr. Sinclair's trial "was done with improper, much less, criminal intent."

Day said upon expiration of his sentence he would return to New York.

DEATH TAKES
I. G. ENGLISH,
EX-PUBLISHERDECEASED WIDELY KNOWN THROUGH-OUT U. P.

Ivan G. English, former publisher of the Escanaba Daily Mirror and widely known throughout the peninsula, passed away at his home, 502 South Eighth street, on Sunday night, after a prolonged illness.

Mr. English first became ill nearly two years ago, but later partially recovered his health and was able to resume his business. Several weeks ago he suffered from a recurrence of the ailment with which he was afflicted and slowly his condition became more critical. The strength of the patient gradually ebbed away and death came at 10:45 o'clock Sunday night.

The body was removed to the Anderson Funeral Home, where it was prepared for burial and will be returned to the family home today. Funeral services will be conducted at the home at 2:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, Rev. R. C. G. Williams officiating. Interment will be in the family lot at Lakeview cemetery.

Native of Escanaba.

Mr. English was born in Escanaba 54 years ago and made this city his home throughout his life. As a young man he became associated with the late S. H. Collins in the publication of the Escanaba Daily Mirror and gave the greater portion of his life to that activity. He retired from the newspaper business five years ago and engaged in the life and accident insurance business, following that vocation up to the end of his life.

Spending his entire life in this city, Mr. English possessed an intimate knowledge of Escanaba's needs and possibilities for development and as a newspaper publisher was identified with many of the movements for the betterment and progress of this city. Mr. English had a host of friends both in this city and throughout the peninsula and the state, who will receive the announcement of his death with deep regret.

Son of Pioneer.

Mr. English is survived by his wife and one daughter, Eleanor, his father, the late George English, one of the pioneers of Escanaba, having preceded him in death by but a comparatively few months. He was a member of the Escanaba lodge of Masons, the Elks and other fraternal and civic organizations.

Bearing Results

Windsor, Ont., June 24 (AP)—Word received today that Detroit river rum runners were operating out of Goderich, Ont., on Lake Huron was viewed by United States prohibition enforcement agencies as evidence that their offensive against smuggling was bearing results.

Two boats, each containing 300 cases of liquor, left Goderich last night, with Detroit as their destination, according to wire received today by Walter S. Petty, acting collector of customs at Detroit.

Interrupting an alleged fishing party yesterday, off Eorser Light, customs patrolmen brought to light a new method of liquor running. They said they found three cases of liquor wired to the keel of the fishing craft. Two "fishermen" were arrested.

Committee Head on Contempt Charges

Trenton, N. J., June 24 (AP)—Mayor Frank Hague, of Jersey City, vice chairman of the National Democratic committee, was arrested tonight on a warrant charging contempt of the legislature for refusing to answer questions concerning the acquisition of his reputed wealth.

The mayor was given 24 hours in which to obtain a writ of habeas corpus. He was to remain during that period in the custody of Marine Detwitt, sergeant-at-arms of the state senate.

"Strongheart",
Dog Hero Dead

Hollywood, Cal., June 24 (AP)—"Strongheart", dog hero of the movies, died today at the home of his owner, Miss Jane Murfin. He was 13 years old. A complication of diseases, following an operation several months ago, caused his death.

His first picture, "The Silent Call," established him as an animal star. Later film successes were "Brown of the North," "The Love Master," "White Fang" and "North Star."

Treated Better as Housekeeper Than
Wife; Gets Divorce

Chicago, June 24 (AP)—For one year Mrs. John A. Seyer, receiving a weekly stipend of $10, acted as housekeeper for her husband and governess for her own children—four of them. Today Judge Sabath granted her a divorce. She will continue in her position which she claimed was vastly more tenable than the wifely status.

A year ago, Mrs. Seyer complained her husband beat her and otherwise treated her cruelly. Judge Sabath suggested the housekeeper idea.

Mrs. Seyer tried it. The "mean" husband again became a suitor. Even the children remarked the change in "Daddy."

So Judge Sabath, in signing the divorce decree, made the arrangement permanent.

Mrs. Seyer admitted that if Mr. Seyer continued courting wedding bells might ring again.

GENERAL BOOTH
LAID TO RESTThousands Witness Simple
Services for Beloved Leader

London, June 24 (AP)—General William Brumfield Booth, second leader of the Salvation Army and its head until last winter, sleeps tonight by the side of the founder, his father, in a flower-decked corner of Abney Park cemetery.

The funeral scene today will live in the history of the Army as the epitomization of all that religious social organization represents. There was no evidence of sadness. There was regret, but no sorrow, for as the army phrased it their general had been promoted to glory.

More persons witnessed the last journey today of the man of peace than had paid a final tribute to the Great Duke of Wellington. The conquering of men had drawn the plaudits of hundreds but many thousands turned out today to see the conqueror of souls to his last resting place.

Services Simple.

The funeral cortege, simplicity itself except for the bright colors of flags of many nations under which the Army has worked, attracted as much public attention as though he had been royalty. It approached the graveside to the tune of joyous hymns.

A platform covered with bright colors had been erected over the grave while all around was a carpet of summer flowers whose odors permeated the surrounding atmosphere. Even the grave was lined with sweet peas.

The standard bearers of the procession made a circle around the grave, raising their banners high. Ten thousand voices answered the request of Commissioner Catherine Booth, daughter of the general, to sing the stirring music of the Army. Then followed a moment of silence and prayer. Speaker after speaker went on to tell of their love for the general and the greatness of his work. There rested on the

LITTLE SUES
FOR DIVORCEGrounds for Basis of Action
Unknown; Friends
Astonished

Ann Arbor, Mich., June 24 (AP)—Suit for divorce from his wife Mrs. Katherine Andrews Little, was filed in Washtenaw county circuit court last week by Dr. Clarence Cook Little, resigned president of the University of Michigan, it was learned tonight.

Papers connected with the suit were withdrawn after being recorded and it was impossible to ascertain what grounds were to be made the basis of the action. Dr. Little left here Saturday for Mt. Desert, Maine, where he will conduct cancer research work, and Mrs. Little is believed to be in Boston.

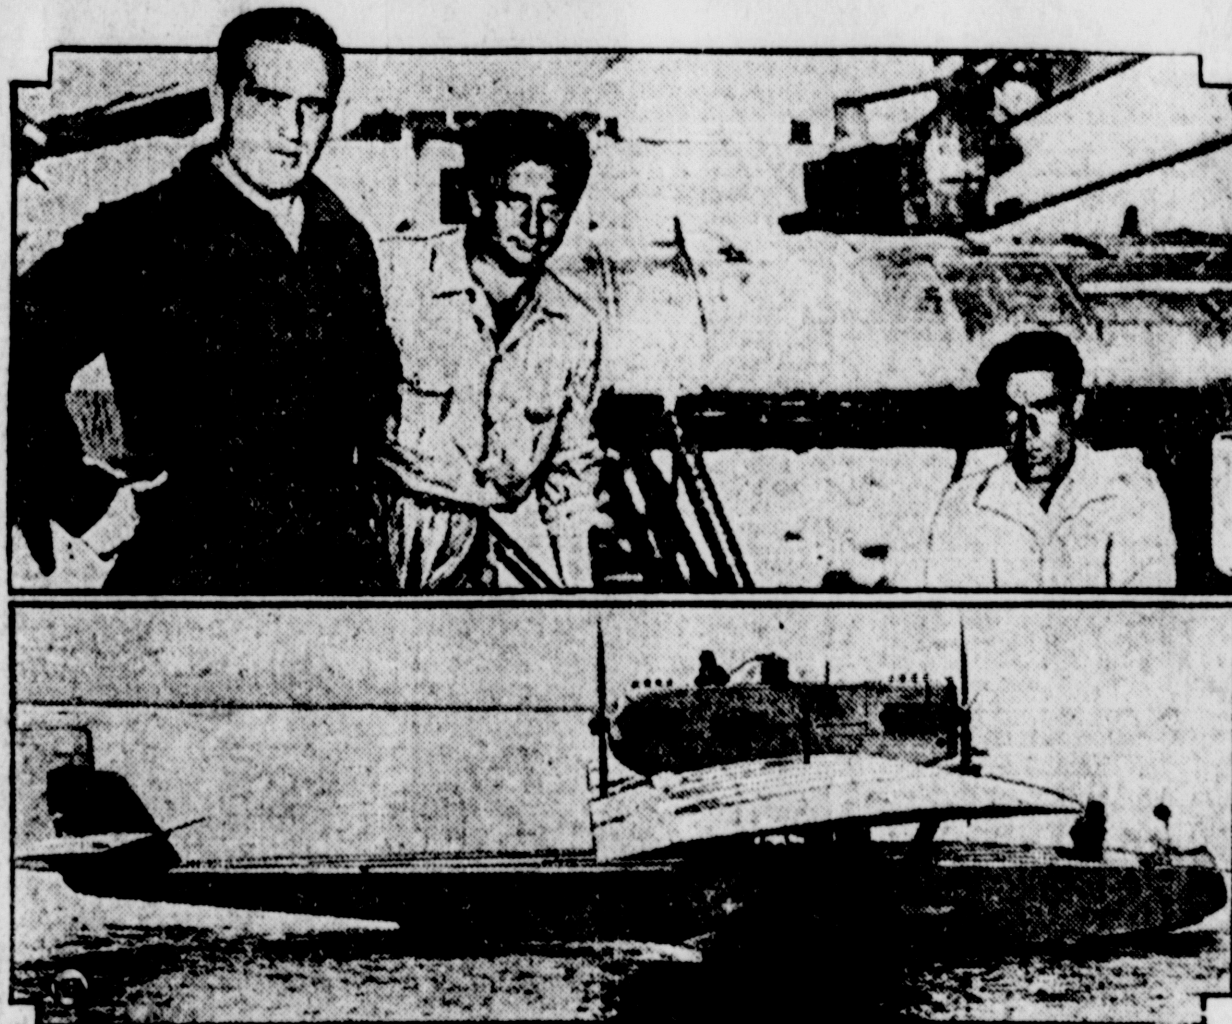

Apparently not even intimate friends of Dr. and Mrs. Little here were apprised of the action. August 20 was set as the date for hearing on Dr. Little's motion, indicating the suit was filed on the same day of this month.

In Surprise.

No intimation that separation was contemplated either by Dr. or Mrs. Little had reached the University campus and acquaintances of the couple hesitated even to speculate as to the probable basis of the suit.

Dr. and Mrs. Little were married May 27, 1911. They have three children, all of school age. A daughter, Louise, is attending University high school here and two sons, Edward R. Little and Robert A. Little, are at a school for boys near Boston.

LOST ON ATLANTIC OCEAN

Hurt in Crash
Near Fond du Lac

Fond du Lac, June 24 (AP)—Six persons were injured, three seriously, when two automobiles collided four miles north of here shortly after noon today.

Albert J. Clouthier, Escanaba, and Dr. R. J. Coggins, Oconto Falls, Wis., were drivers of the cars.

Mrs. H. W. Reade of Escanaba, for whom Clouthier is chauffeur, Mrs. Walter J. Cavanagh, of Kenosha, who was Mrs. Reade's companion, and Evelyn Elliot of Oconto Falls, were seriously injured.

Mrs. Cavanagh had her scalp nearly torn off and is believed to have a fractured skull. Mrs. Reade had both legs broken and a possible fractured skull, and Miss Elliott suffered a broken back and crushed vertebrae.

Coggins was trying to pass a truck on the highway when struck by Clouthier, driving in the opposite direction. Coggins applied the brakes but the car failed to stop on the slippery pavement.

The injured were taken to a hospital here.

ENROUTE TO ESCANABA.

Mrs. Reade drove to Kenosha Sunday to bring her cousin, Mrs. Cavanagh to Escanaba for a week's visit and were enroute to this city, it was learned here last night. Close friends of Mrs. Reade were advised of the accident by telephone, but were given only meagre details. Mrs. W. W. Oliver and Mrs. M. K. Bissell left immediately for Fond du Lac to be with Mrs. Reade.

Plane Would Aid
Keweenaw Sheriff

Calumet, Mich., June 24 (AP)—As the crow flies, the distance across Keweenaw county, Mich., is just about that of any average county. As a sheriff must travel, however, it is twice the span of the state of Kansas and a route that would discourage a transcontinental buslifter.

Sheriff John Kotola discovered all that today when he mapped out a course to the home of a Keweenaw county resident upon whom he was ordered to serve an eviction order.

The man upon whom the sheriff desired to serve the paper lives on Isle Royale. There being no regular boat service from the Michigan mainland to the island, Sheriff Kotola was forced to route himself through the Upper Peninsula, Wisconsin and Minnesota to Duluth, from where he will go by boat to the island.

The round trip will carry him more than 1,400 miles.

WRECKAGE IS
ISLES, REPORTNO WORD FROM CREW FOR NEARLY
3 DAYS

Madrid, June 24 (AP)—Naval craft and airplanes tonight were scouring the seas in the vicinity of the Azores for trace of the four Spanish aviators of whom there had been no definite word for almost three days.

An unconfirmed report that wreckage, with no trace of life about it, had been sighted in those waters by a British freighter gave the only ray of hope in the gloomy situation. For Spanish destroyers sped from Ferrol in an attempt to verify this report, while the Portuguese gunboat Zaire was refueling at Norta to continue the search it had begun on Saturday.

Message False.

Premier Primo de Rivera, who unwittingly gave false hope to Spain Saturday by authorizing publication of a message then supposed to have come from Major Ramon Franco, leader of the flight, today appeared most anxious when he entered a cabinet meeting. He said the reports he had were "contradictory and the outlook for the safety of the four flyers was discouraging."

Public anxiety was great because Major Franco had been a national hero since his flight in 1926 to South America. On the present flight he was accompanied by one of his old crew, Captain Ruiz de Alda, and my Major Eduardo Gallarza, and Sergeant Mechanic Pedro Madariaga.

Fears Grow.

Lack of news of the four Spanish aviators who left Cartagena, Spain, on Friday, for New York, last week, is causing growing fears for their safety.

The Spanish government, which had announced receipt of a radio message stating they had landed on San Miguel island, the Azores, early Saturday morning, had no further word of their movements.

This message was confirmed from no other sources. Horta, the communications center of the Azores, was unable to trace them and Ponta Delgada, the chief port of San Miguel, reported no trace of them there.

Anxiety over the fate of the four men rose rapidly although some believed that mechanical difficulties might have held them at some smaller island of the Azores with smaller communications could be had only by boat.

GIBSON ARRIVES
FOR ARMS TALK

U. S. Envoy in London to Discuss Naval Problem
With Dawes

London, June 24 (AP)—United States Ambassador Hugh S. Gibson, spokesman of the American government on disarmament at Geneva, in April, arrived from Belgium tonight for a conference with United States Ambassador Charles G. Dawes, central figure in the dramatic international developments of last week.

The small, alert and smiling envoy indicated on arrival from Brussels that the two ambassadors will have a general discussion of the international situation, although they have more particularly held the spotlight as agents of President Hoover in seeking solution of the naval problem.

Mr. Gibson tonight thought it quite unlikely that the discussions would result in any immediate announcement of great public interest.

"I came to see General Dawes at his request and on instructions from Washington," he said. "Our talk will be a general one and I will be here as long as he wants me." He admitted that the naval program would be one subject of discussion.

British public opinion welcomes the coming of Mr. Gibson as another significant move in the negotiation for settlement of the outstanding issue between Great Britain and the United States. His activities and experience at Geneva were recalled and belief was in informed circles that the meeting of the two American ambassadors should prove fruitful.

CONFESSED SLAYER OF OHIO
State Co-ed Pleads
Not Guilty

Columbus, Ohio, June 24 (AP)—Dr. James Howard Snook, 49, dismissed university professor and confessed hamster slayer of Theora K. Hix, 25, Ohio State co-ed, will go on trial on charges of first degree murder in criminal court here July 22 unless he obtains a change of venue, which his attorneys indicated they might seek when Dr. Snook was arraigned today.

Dr. Snook stood before a crowd that jammed criminal Judge Robert Duncan's court room and entered a plea of not guilty to an indictment charging him with "maliciously and premeditatedly" killing the co-ed.

As he stood up he cast his eyes over the room and they caught for a moment the eyes of another man who stood erect and defiant. The other man was Melvin T. Hix, retired educator and father of the slain co-ed. Their eyes met only for a moment, then Dr. Snook bowed his head, moistened his lips and turned away. He spoke the words "not guilty" calmly and distinctly.

Snook Calm.

Aside from the dramatic moment his eyes met those of Mr. Hix, he displayed the calm demeanor that he has exhibited most of the time since his arrest ten days ago.

County Prosecutor John J. Ches-ter then asked that the trial date be set for the week of July 22, and Judge Duncan set the 22nd as the date.

Dr. Snook confessed last Thursday that he had hammered Miss Hix into unconsciousness on a darkened rifle range on the rim of the city a week before, then, severed her jugular vein with his pocket knife and her suffering.

He said he killed the co-ed because she had threatened to kill his wife and baby.

DENY PROFESSOR U. S. CITIZENSHIP

Has Scruples Against Taking Up Arms in Defense of Country

New Haven, Conn., June 24 (AP)—Because of conscientious scruples against taking up arms in the defense of his country, Professor Douglas C. Macintosh, professor of theology at Yale Divinity school, today was refused admission to citizenship of the United States by Judge Warren B. Burrows, of the naturalization court, in a preliminary hearing. The status of Professor Macintosh had been marked as questionable. When he appeared before the naturalization court this morning he requested citizenship admission under reservations. After Professor Macintosh was sworn in by the clerk of courts he was asked to answer question 22 on the preliminary naturalization papers, referring to the taking up of arms in defense of the United States, if it became necessary. He replied he would take up arms with the reservation that the war in which he was asked to serve should be for what he considered a just cause. He said he could swear allegiance to the United States as well as he could to any country and after his allegiance, he would owe no other country no duty higher than to this country.

Judge Burrows, in refusing Professor Macintosh to citizenship, said that the president had the power to command the nation's fighting units in time of war. To allow any citizen the use of his own discretion would open the way to presumption by every citizen as to the justice or injustice of war, and would leave the president without any power whatever.

Paramount Acquires Detroit Theatres

Detroit, June 24 (AP)—A merger involving approximately $6,000,000 whereby the Public Theatre, Inc., obtain control of eleven Detroit motion picture theatres, owned by John H. Kunsky, was announced by George W. Trendle, secretary and general manager of the latter organization, today.

The Public organization is a theatre-holding subsidiary of the Paramount Famous-Lasky corporation. The transaction calls for transfer of 72 per cent of the Kunsky stock for an equal amount of Paramount Famous-Lasky corporation stock. Only the operating leases of 10 of the 11 theatres are involved, the property rights remaining in their present hands. The deal is reported to have been the result of more than two years' negotiations.

Drowning Causes Probe of Beaches

Grand Rapids, June 24 (AP)—An investigation of conditions at all Kent county bathing beaches will be sought by Deputy Sheriff Charles Lawyer as the result of the drowning of Benjamin Wolbers, 24, in Lamberton Lake, near here, today.

According to Miss Lucille Gaudin, 18, who was swimming across the lake with Wolbers, the life guard, Frank Crothers, 40, who is also owner of the small beach, was not watching the swimmers and when called to rescue Wolbers he rowed near the spot where the victim had sunk but would not dive.

Pilot Killed When Air Liner Crashes

St. Paul, June 24 (AP)—Eddie Middagh, veteran pilot, was killed and seven persons injured early tonight when a Northwest Airways tri-motored Ford plane from Chicago, crashed near Indian Mounds Park here after taking off from the St. Paul airport for Minneapolis.

Public Office Is Inescapable Lure to French Nation

Paris (AP)—If there be people who like holding public office better than the French, statistics have not revealed their identity. Of the ten million voters in this country, 1,200,000 were candidates in the recent municipal elections.

Every village, town and city in France, 37,384 communes all told, elected a mayor and a municipal Council. About 400,000 men got jobs as municipal councillors, or aldermen. The minimum number of councillors, no matter how tiny the commune, is ten. In some places every voter is an officeholder, and in the hamlet of Riboux, where there are only eight voters, two office-holders had to be borrowed from a neighboring village.

The municipal jobs used to be good for four years, but the new incumbents were elected for six. The longer term is presumably more agreeable both to men who like the dignity of little titles and to those gentry who know how to get pork out of a barrel.

The importance of a mayor in France often varies in inverse ratio to the population of his commune. If it is just a wee village he is likely not only to be the biggest vegetable in the field, but something of an autocrat, too, if he feels that way. And if he is also captain of the fire brigade, then even the little school children will praise him as he passes and stare in admiration.

Germany produced two-fifths of the motion picture features made in Europe last year.

LOCAL GUNNERS WIN CONTESTS

Fond du Lac Marksmen Lose to Escanaba Trap Shooters

An Escanaba trap shooting team representing the peninsula division of the Chicago and North Western railroad defeated a crack six man team from Fond du Lac, representing the Lake Shore division of the railroad here yesterday by twenty-four targets. The shoot was held in the afternoon at the C. and N. W. trap shooting grounds and drew a large crowd of gun enthusiasts.

The local marksmen also copied the doubles event in the divisional shooting. High honors for the day, however, went to the Fond du Lac sharpshooter Strey who smashed 25 straight bullseyes for the only perfect score that has ever been turned in at the local grounds.

The teams were: Escanaba—H. O. Brotherton, Robertson, LaPlante, Sullivan, Henderson and Frank Brotherton; Fond du Lac—Brown, Strey, Sempeck, Scott, Curran and Konrad.

In the regular trophy shoot for local enthusiasts, George Lehr won first prize in the Class A division, E. LaPlante won first prize in the Class B shoot, and Dr. Defnet copped the Class C contest. Some very excellent scores were turned in by the marksmen during the day. Another trophy shoot will be held at the ground again next Sunday. This sport is proving to be one of the most popular in this city.

During the ceremony Mrs. Booth sat motionless, her eyes fixed on the casket. Not until it was being lowered did her courage desert her for a moment. Then a tear trickled down her face but she brushed it resolutely away and walked with quick, firm steps to the platform.

"Our general," she said, "has entered into the joy of his Lord." She exhorted her hearers to follow the examples of her husband and then led them in saying the Lord's prayer. Commissioner Catherine said the committal sentences.

CESSNER TALKS TO KIWANIS

Young Business Man Gives His Impressions of Europe

American business in foreign lands is erasing old boundary lines, leveling the barriers of distrust and jealousy and "Americanizing" industry to the everlasting benefit of all concerned, Harold Gessner, who recently returned from Germany where he was engaged in business, told the Kiwanis club yesterday.

No longer are American concerns establishing sales agencies abroad, he said. They are organizing the separate corporations under the laws of the countries in which they are operating, and conducting them in American fashion, teaching the world the lessons which arise from American efficiency in production and distribution, and thereby raising foreign standards of living more nearly to American levels.

American movies and American books and plays are doing a great deal toward carrying more accurate information about the United States to the people of Europe, Mr. Gessner said. So are the 700,000 tourists who visit Europe every year.

But the lessons, he added, are not altogether one-sided. Europe is teaching America some important things, also, about aviation, the conservation of national resources, and about living more wisely, leisurely and happily.

The tremendous investments of American capital abroad during recent years is doing a great deal to establish international good will, Mr. Gessner said. He urged his audience to study world problems, to keep informed on international affairs, and to do their utmost whenever possible, to preserve the friendliness which American business is building up with the peoples of other continents.

Mr. Gessner's talk was crammed full of information, delightfully spiced with humor, and received by the Kiwanis with the greatest enthusiasm.

DISABLED WAR VETERANS MEET

Indorse Adequate National Defense, Universal Conscription

Detroit, June 24 (AP)—A more adequate national defense, increased allowance for national guard units and civil military training camps, restricted immigration and a universal conscription law were indorsed today by 6,000 delegates to the ninth annual convention of the Disabled American Veterans of the World War at the opening business session of the convention.

The report of the organization's legislative committee, adopted without debate, also suggested that the veterans' bureau regional offices established employment agencies for disabled men and that there should be a merger of all federal offices for the relief of veterans.

It was also recommended that the veterans' bureau establish a system of home treatment for tubercular cases with a maintenance allowance for each patient.

Red Tape Charged

Charges that the veterans' bureau functioned only when demands were made upon it through a routine full of red tape.

"It is most regrettable," said National Commander Millard W. Rice in his annual report, "that the administration of the veterans' bureau has been, and still is, such that he gets who demands, and that, on the other hand, he who asks nothing gets nothing and those who are uninformed and inexperienced have to be penalized."

The resolution urging legislation for universal conscription in times of national emergency drew a storm of applause from the crowded floor and was approved unanimously.

Oscar Peterson, aged 71, passed away at his home at Mashek at an early hour Sunday morning following an illness of several years. Mr. Peterson had not been confined to his bed and was able to be about the home Saturday. He was stricken late in the day and died shortly after midnight.

Oscar Peterson was born in Smoland, Sweden and came to this country when a young man. He first lived in Boston, Mass., and later spent five years in Maine. He then went to Peshtigo where he worked as section foreman for the Wisconsin and Michigan railway. He came to Escanaba about thirty years ago. Riley Crittenden, state secretary of the Michigan Association of Coroners, of Howell, and other state officers will be present.

The new coroner act of 1927, Chapter XIII of the criminal code, has given the coroners of the state more or less difficulty in its definition of duties and procedure in certain cases. Two conferences have already been held in the lower peninsula. The annual summer meeting will be held at Cadillac, while upper peninsula coroners will gather at Trout Creek.

In 1924 Mr. MacDonald, then being in even greater minority, announced that he would ignore defeats on minor questions. The premier is expected to make a similar announcement now to protect himself against possible defeat on a minor question.

COUNTY QUOTA UNFILLED YET

Enrollments for Military Camp at Soo Behind Last Year

Delta County's enrollment for the Citizens' Military Training Camp at Sault Ste. Marie is ten under the quota, it was stated yesterday. Fifteen boys have signed to attend the camp, which begins July 19, whereas 25 may go from this county.

Enrollments throughout the peninsula are 40 percent behind last year, it has been revealed by Lieutenant Millard F. W. Oliver, adjutant at Fort Brady, who stated yesterday that only 161 of the necessary 265 boys have signed to date.

Last year at this time the enrollments totaled 205 as compared with 161 this year. Camp will close August 17. Visitors' day is August 16 and on August 15 the annual track and field meet will be held.

Capt. Robert H. Lord, of this city, is among the officers who will return to the camp this year. He will take charge of the C. M. T. C. rifle company. Others are: Major C. Bierbower, of Chicago, camp surgeon; and Mrs. Richard H. Burdeno, hostess, Sault Ste. Marie.

Following is the enrollment to date:

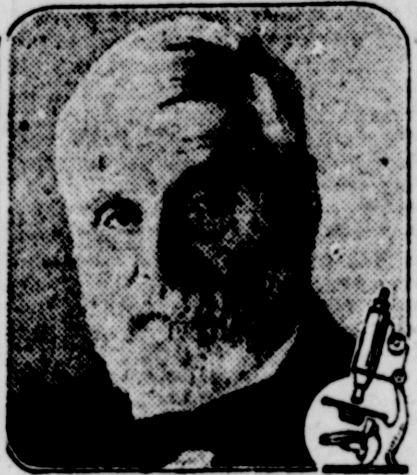

Mrs. Foss Elwyn of Sault Ste. Marie, formerly Miss Mildred Stromberg of this city who has been visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Stromberg, Ludington street has left by motor for a visit at Chicago.

Doctor Found What is Best for Thin, Constipated People

As a family doctor at Monticello, Illinois, the whole human body, not any small part of it was Dr. Caldwell's practice. More than half his "calls" were on women, children and babies. They are the ones most often sick. But their illnesses were usually of a minor nature—colds, fevers, headaches, biliousness—and all of them required first a thorough evacuation. They were constipated.

In the course of his 47 years' practice (he was graduated from Rush Medical College back in 1875), he found a good deal of success in such cases with a prescription of his own containing simple laxative herbs with pepsin. In 1892 he decided to use this formula in the manufacture of a medicine to be known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and in that year his prescription was first placed on the market.

The preparation immediately had as great a success in the drug stores as it previously had in his private practice. Now, the third generation is using it. Mothers are giving it to their children who were given it by their mothers. Every second of the working day someone somewhere is going into a drug store to buy it. Millions of bottles of Dr. Caldwell's

J. B. Caldwell, M.D.
AT AGE 93

Syrup Pepsin are being used a year.

Its great success is based on merit, on repeated buying, on one satisfied user telling another. There are thousands of homes in this country that are never without a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and we have gotten many hundreds of letters from grateful people telling us that it helped them when everything else failed. Every drug store sells Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

CUTOVER LAND VALUE LOWERED

Equalization Board Heeds Advice of State Tax Commission

Heeding the state tax commission in its recent statement that cut-over lands in Delta county were taxed too high, the committee on equalization of the board of supervisors in its annual meeting yesterday carefully pared the valuations of "sand plain" townships but added enough to other districts so that the total equalized valuation was approximately $59,000 more than the total set by boards of review. Thus the total valuation as assessed by the various townships was $18,759,998, whereas the total valuation as equalized amounted to $18,818,320.

Intoxicated Driver Pays Auto Damages

John Snell, of Ford River who was arrested Saturday night for driving an automobile under the influence of liquor, pleaded guilty to a charge of reckless driving when arraigned in Justice Henry E. Ranguette's court yesterday morning. Fine and costs were suspended and the case was continued until July 2 when Snell promised to pay the damages done to two cars.

The accident occurred on the new highway near the State Fair grounds when Snell was going south at an unsteady pace. His car crashed into machines driven by Willard Rockburg and Wilber Borman. The police were notified and Snell was apprehended at the junction of US-2 and the new highway.

Miss Jane Miller of Plymouth, Wis. has returned to her home after a visit here with relatives and friends.

FOG, SPEEDING CAUSE MISHAPS

Sheriff's Department Warns Against Careless Driving

Dense fogs and excessive speeding combined to cause several motor accidents over the week-end, most of them without serious consequence. Several mishaps were caused by drivers attempting to pass cars when a machine was approaching. So frequently has this occurred that the sheriff's department yesterday issued a stringent warning against such careless driving.

"It is impossible," the announcement stated, "to ascertain the guilty persons in these accidents, because the driver who has forced another car into the ditch usually drives on not knowing that he has caused an accident. This department warns against passing cars unless there is a clear road ahead."

A car driven south by William Minor on the Wells road between No. 5 and the St. Paul dock crashed into the left side of a sedan, driven by Alex Young, of Gladstone. Mr. Young had partly opened the door of his car so that the Minor auto tore it off completely, and then swerved into a coupe driven by Lloyd Morgan, of Gladstone, which was going north on the highway. Mrs. Morgan, the mother of Lloyd, sustained an injured hip.

Alex Carlson sustained injuries to his finger and arm about 10:30 o'clock Sunday morning when the car he was driving collided with an auto driven by Miss Martha Liesner, of Bark River, at the corner of Stephenson avenue and Ludington street. Both cars were damaged.

Walter Swanson, of Gladstone was apprehended at 1 o'clock Monday morning by Earl Bourdelais, county motorcycle officer for speeding on Sheridan road. Swanson pleaded guilty when arraigned in Justice Henry E. Ranguette's court yesterday morning, and paid a fine of $5 and costs.

A roadster driven by Ben Desilets overturned in the ditch near Narenta Saturday night about 5 o'clock, pinning Thomas Reed underneath, when it crashed into the rear of a slowly moving touring car driven by Howard Jacobs, Desilets and Thomas Gaborne, another passenger in the automobile, escaped with minor scratches while Reed was badly shaken up.

Eric K. Waymen, of Daggett, suffered minor bruises when the sedan he was driving went into the ditch near Narenta late Sunday night after colliding with a sedan driven by Al Alton, of Gladstone. Alton assumed entire responsibility for the accident and promised to pay the damages.

GREEN AND HIS CRITICS.

IN SPITE of the fact that all fair minded residents of the upper peninsula freely and enthusiastically acclaim Gov. Fred W. Green as the best friend this section of Michigan ever had in the executive office at Lansing, some newspaper publishers, even in the peninsula, are persistently lending their columns to criticism of the governor and his administration.

No one resents honest criticism. But all fair minded men do resent petty, unconstructive, continuous fault finding. One of the most persistent offenders in this regard and one of those who, throughout Gov. Green's administration, has continuously lent the columns of his newspaper to unjustifiable fault finding, is Pat O'Brien, of the Iron River-Stambaugh Reporter. In a recent editorial in his newspaper, Mr. O'Brien holds up the legislatures that served contemporaneously with Gov. Alex. Groesbeck, as models of excellence and proceeds to most unfairly compare the accomplishments of those legislatures and the administration of Ex-Gov. Groesbeck with the accomplishments of Gov. Green's administration and the legislatures serving with him.

But this editorial, itself, reveals most illuminatingly the reason for this and other criticism that has persistently flown from Mr. O'Brien's pen. Mr. O'Brien served as a member of the legislature during the administrations of Gov. Groesbeck and quite naturally he thinks that everything good and holy flowed from the organization with which he served and that other legislatures, of which he was not a member, were sadly lacking in accomplishments. Mr. O'Brien also admits that he was a strong supporter of Ex-Gov. Groesbeck in the pre-primary campaign of three years ago and that he was a most ardent friend and admirer of the former chief executive, whom Gov. Green buried politically in a most decisive manner. It should, therefore, not be difficult to determine the reason for Mr. O'Brien's apparent animus and the basis for his carping criticisms.

Mr. O'Brien neglects to recall that the administration Ex-Gov. Groesbeck passed on to the administration of Gov. Green a jumble in the state's financial affairs never before equaled in all the history of the state and which constituted one of the most serious and difficult problems ever faced by any governor or any legislature. Mr. O'Brien wholly neglects to call attention to the fact that Gov. Green and the legislature finally brought order out of chaos in the state's finances. Mr. O'Brien neglects to inform his readers that the record now shows that Ex-Gov. Groesbeck, in manner that might be described as almost criminal and certainly shameful, neglected in situations of the state, where wards of the people of Michigan are cared for, for the benefit of certain state institutions in which the former governor developed a personal interest. Mr. O'Brien fails to recall that this neglect of state institutions on the part of Michigan's former governor, furnished Gov. Green and members of the legislature again, with a monumental problem—that of providing funds for suitable buildings at state institutions, which should have been erected years ago. Simple, humanitarian treatment for state wards demanded the raising of a building fund by Gov. Green and the legislature, greater than ever before in all the history of the state. Mr. O'Brien neglects to tell his readers that this situation was finally met. He neglects to tell his readers that in both the house and the senate of the last legislature, certain individuals were given seats, who were unfriendly to Gov. Green and his administration and whose prime object in accepting service in the house and the senate was to embarrass and hinder Gov. Green in the accomplishment of his objects. Mr. O'Brien fails to recall that in spite of this handicap, every important measure, conceived by Gov. Green for the good of the state of Michigan, finally was enacted into law. Mr. O'Brien and others of his kind permit their blind devotion to a lost cause to cloud their vision and affect their convictions.

Such criticism comes with poor grace and can have little effect upon the whole body of people in the state and in the case of Mr. O'Brien, it comes with particularly poor grace from a newspaper publisher located in a section of Michigan that has been singled out by Gov. Green for recognition and fair treatment such as never before been accorded by a chief executive of this state.

IVAN G. ENGLISH.
THE DEATH of Ivan G. English robbed the newspaper fraternity of the city and the district of one of its most familiar and most colorful figures. Although, for several years, Mr. English had been engaged in other pursuits and in a battle for health against overwhelming odds, he remained the newspaperman in his own heart and in the minds of those who remained in the profession. He had spent too many years at an editorial desk to shake off easily the habits and the viewpoints of the craft.

Few and not too substantial were the daily newspapers in the Upper Peninsula when Mr. English first became identified with the Escanaba Daily Mirror. With that publication he passed through a period which brought revolutionary changes in the publishing business. To have had a part in the pioneering and the development of the profession over a period of so many years was an experience which fell to the lot of few men.

Unwavering optimism, a faculty for continually seeing the silver lining, and a keen sense of humor made Mr. English a popular figure. One could differ with him sharply on many things and still retain with him a companionable status, that marked his friendship as something to be prized.

COUNTING NOSES.
WITH reapportionment of seats in congress scheduled to follow the 1930 census, and a subsequent redistricting of Michigan for congressional election purposes, the decennial population count becomes a matter of extraordinary importance. Michigan has gained, according to well-founded estimates, at least 750,000 and possibly as many as 1,000,000 inhabitants in the last ten years. Most of this gain has been in the Detroit area. Detroit, consequently, will be entitled to most of the states additional seats in the national house of representatives. But the redistricting of the state is certain to bring about a relocation of boundary lines of virtually all of the twelve districts. In the job of redistricting, population figures will be the dominant factor. While there is no reason to believe that the Eleventh and Twelfth districts, which take in all of the Upper Peninsula, have enjoyed any startling population gains in ten years, it is certain that they can not afford to fail to count every nose. The job should be and must be thorough. Fortunately for the Eleventh district, a man splendidly equipped to do a thorough job has been appointed as director. Ben Gero, Sr., of Manistiquette, has the energy, the ability and the interest in the welfare of the district and the peninsula which are so necessary to the successful carrying on of the census-taking work.

A QUEER SORT OF JOB.
THE THINGS men will do to earn a living are sometimes very queer. In Berlin there died the other day a man who had made a fortune by dealing in circus "freaks". He scoured Germany, for years, looking for dog-faced boys, bearded women, grotesquely misshapen cripples, three-headed calves and so on. When he found such a specimen he would take the luckless individual to Berlin, train it, add a few touches that nature overlooked and then contract with a circus for its exhibition.

LYRICS OF LIFE

SOME RAIN.

Rain never frets me
When it wets me,
I rather like the rain—
To just go sloshing
And glistening
Some street, some country lane.
A sky too sunny.
Like too much money.
And life gets rather stale,
So, altogether,
I like my weather
To have some rain and hail.

Luck never matters
When it splatters.
The way the raindrops do.
I think that fighting
Is quite inviting
A lot of times, don't you?
I may be funny,
But too much money
And life gets rather flat,
For, altogether,
I like my weather
To have some rain, at that.

AMUSEMENTS

AT THE DELFT
Due to the success of the combination of Jack Holt as the star and Frank R. Capra as the director of "Submarine" the two were reunited in the filming of "The Donovan Affair," the Columbia 100 per cent dialogue production featuring Jack Holt, which will be the attraction at the Delft again today.

Jack Holt rose to stardom under the Paramount-Lasky banner. He has been a popular star of western pictures for over ten years, and has portrayed the leading roles in such notable successes as "Sea Horses," "Forsyth River," "North of 36," "Avantgarde" and others. Recently, he has been given an opportunity by Columbia to show his ability as a dramatic actor and has proved himself to be a great star. He was highly recommended by fans for his new type of characterization in Columbia's "Submarine." "The Donovan Affair" is a screen adaptation of the play of that name by Owen Davis which was a Broadway success.

HEALTH

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN
Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine.

Any time a human muscle or ligament is used over and over again in the same process over a long period of time, it is likely to revolt.

There are numerous occupations in which such movements are required and associated with these occupations are diseases to which the name of the occupation and the word "cramp" is usually applied. Thus physicians classify these diseases as writer's cramp, telegrapher's cramp, hammerman's cramp, twister's cramp and miner's nystagmus.

The telegrapher's cramp is the result usually of prolonged fatigue during complicated movements that are required for sending messages with the Morse code. The result of overuse of the tissues involved in such sending is spasm, tremor and weakness of the muscles involved. If the work is persisted in without rest, not infrequently there will be associated with the muscle cramp a nervous instability due to the strain.

Writer's cramp is usually due to holding the arm and the muscles of the hand in the same position for long periods of time while writing by hand, although there may be similar cramps following long continued use of the typewriter at high speed. Among 8518 employees of the British post-office 14 had to be transferred to other work because of the development of writer's cramp which did not improve under rest.

When the writer's cramp occurs, the adoption of a different method of sitting or writing or the use of a different pen and desk will often bring about relief.

If the condition persists, it may be necessary, of course, to change employment.

Twister's cramp is an altered condition of the hand, particularly of the thumb, produced in people by the continued operation of twisting threads together. Sometimes overuse of the muscles ends in paralysis, so that the person is unable to carry on his work.

Associated with the use of pneumatic tools, there may be changes in the muscles and the blood vessels which have serious effects on workers. Thus the continued vibration and the pressure of the tool impedes the circulation of the fingers and may cause the fingers, in the words of the operator, "to go dead." Included with the use of pneumatic tools, the form of the apparatus, the weight of the tool, the regulation of the air pressure and the noise must also be considered.

In miner's nystagmus the eyeballs oscillate. This condition was first discovered among miners working under conditions of bad illumination and was associated with too great a strain thrown on the tissues. When the condition occurs, the symptoms are dancing of lights and intolerance of bright light and backward inclination of the head.

Of course, the first step in the cure of any form of disorder due to fatigue of tissues is to take the worker away from the employment at least temporarily.

It is a commonly recognized fact that doctors do not practice what they preach and that the absent-minded professor with a tremendous knowledge of calculus and logarithm is frequently unable to foot up the grocery bill. This, of course, is a part of human nature. Physicians who constantly teach other people the importance of eating slowly are driven by the amount of their practice to a hasty gulping of a sandwich and a glass of milk at lunch.

Largely because the professor of the past was a shut-in type, the cartoonists have come to depict him of tiny body and tremendous head, wearing thick lenses because of his near-sightedness and eye strain, and utterly incapable of anything in the way of physical performance. There has, however, come about a considerable change in recent years.

In the first place, the nation's sport has changed from the strenuous activities of the past, such as baseball and tennis, to the milder golf and there has come a general recognition of the value of mild exercises and outdoor life for happiness and longevity. There is hardly a college or university in the country that has not its golf course adjacent.

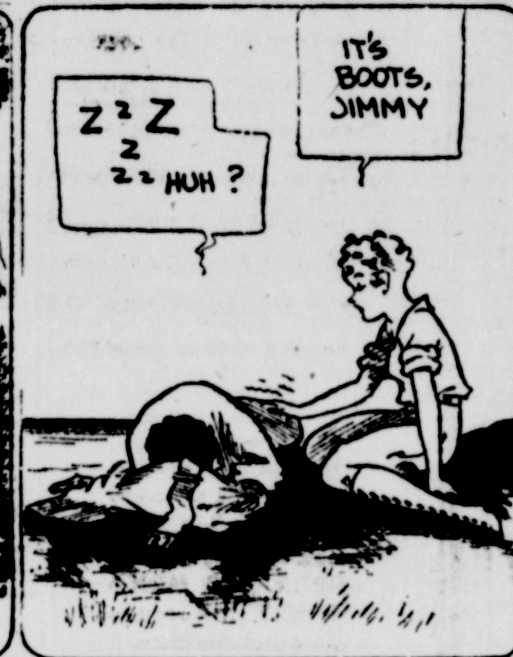

Recently Hrdlicka, in order to determine the condition of professors, measured one hundred members of the National Academy of Sciences, all of whom are recognized as high class brain workers. He found that these men were not inferior, but in general superior in physique, strength, health and longevity to old American types.

Moreover, the heads of these men did actually exceed the size not only the heads of the public at large, but even those of well educated and professional persons of old American classes. In other words, the highly talented men of science conformed physically to the races from which they were descended, such as German, Russian, Italian or other groups.

A Cleveland meteorologist says the day may be near when man shall control the weather. What in the world will there be left to talk about then?

STATE ASYLUM OVER-CROWDED

Judge Asks Delta County Supervisors to Meet Emergency

An appalling story of overcrowded conditions in state asylums for the insane and feeble minded was brought to the ears of the Delta county board of supervisors at their meeting yesterday, when Judge Judd Yelland asked the board to take some immediate action for providing emergency housing for Delta county inmates.

"The situation is an acute one," he stated. "Every institution in the state is overcrowded and we have been ordered not to send any more feeble minded individuals to Newberry. The last session of the legislature authorized the raising of funds to meet this condition, but this money will not be available for a year and a half."

Judge Yelland pointed out that within the next 18 months several cases will undoubtedly arise which will necessitate isolation or hospital treatment. The state will be unable to provide adequate housing, and he urged that Delta county take steps to meet the emergency.

"The attorney general advises me that it is within the power of the county to provide housing for these individuals," Mr. Yelland stated. He urged that several counties could combine to share jointly the burden of a temporary asylum.

The judge stated that two children at present are boarding out at public expense because the state is unable to care for them. He called attention to the fact that he had several epileptic and feeble minded cases on the waiting list at Lapeer where 1,000 persons are seeking admittance.

"If the county takes action in this matter the added expense will not be so great as supposed," the judge continued. "The county pays the expenses for one year of every individual sent to a state hospital under the present system. This money would be diverted to a part payment of emergency housing."

J. P. Cameron, chairman of the board, appointed the following committee to investigate conditions and make recommendations: Supervisors C. J. Burns, O. J. Thorson, August Larson, William Robarge and A. J. Voelker.

BOARD ORDERS PLOT IMPROVED

Delta County to Beautify Ground in Lakeview Cemetery

The expenditure of not more than $500 was authorized yesterday by the Delta county board of supervisors for fencing in and beautifying a plot of ground owned by the county in Lakeview cemetery.

This section, which lies in the northwest corner of the cemetery, will be levelled off, given a fertile top soil, and will be enclosed by a cyclone fence. Action was taken upon suggestion of the Lakeview Cemetery association which is carrying on a program of beautifying the northwest section of the cemetery.

A plot of ground lying east of Twenty-first street and south of Twelfth avenue north, heretofore held in the name of the county, was authorized to be deeded over to the department of conservation. This plot will be used by the state fire patrol which has established headquarters here.

J. P. Cameron, chairman of the board, appointed Supervisors W. J. Miller and W. H. Needham directors of the Upper Peninsula Development Bureau from Delta county. Supervisors C. J. Burns and W. H. Needham were appointed Delta county's representatives in the Up-

R. H. Labre, county clerk, was authorized to attend the state convention of county clerks in Jackson this summer. He was instructed to invite the clerks to Escanaba next year. This is entirely possible, it was stated, since the clerks are desirous of combining their convention with a pleasure trip in the upper peninsula.

A communication received from the Louis Bowman post of the American Legion asking the county to co-operate in the matter of seeking better water connections with the lower peninsula through a state-owned car ferry from Menominee to Frankfort, was tabled in committee.

CHAPTER I.

AT three o'clock of a sunny, crisp November day Nan Carroll was happy. Not just content, or happy in a pallid, negative sort of way, but happy with that upwelling of the spirit which is akin to ecstasy.

And yet no man, opening the outer door of the suite of three offices—a door bearing the dignified sign, "John Curtis Morgan, Attorney-at-Law"—and peeping in upon her could have discovered any outstanding reason for her happiness. Just a pretty young stenographer or private secretary, and a busy one at that, he might have thought.

But if it had been a girl who had peeped in and seen Nan's flushed, pretty face, she would have deduced instantly that Nan's happiness was born of the consciousness that she looked extremely well in her new fall dress of russet silk crepe, a simple little slip of a dress whose short skirt dipped demurely just over the caps of rounded, slim knees.

Certainly Nan had reason for happiness over the fact that the russet silk crepe was almost exactly the color of her bobbed brown hair, that the velvet of her narrow brown pumps was subtly matched in the velvet of her round brown eyes. Such harmonies are not accidental, but with Nan they were instinctive, and not sufficient reason for the joy that had suddenly flooded over her so that her small body almost visibly vibrated with it as she sat erect in the narrow-backed chair before her typewriter.

Her ringless hands played rapidly over the keyboard of the machine, as if endowed with a consciousness and intelligence of their own, for certainly there was nothing in the legal document she was typing from shorthand notes to bring that high luster into her brown-velvet eyes and that joy-flush into her cheeks.

"THREE o'clock!" She glanced at her tiny, octagonal white-gold watch as she reached the end of her shorthand notes. With an expert twist of her wrist she took the crackling sheets of legal-sized bond paper and carbons from the machine, sorted them swiftly, combined them with the other pages of the brief, scanned their flawless typing proudly, then added clips from a little box that had its place in the meticulous order of her top desk drawer.

And as always, whenever she touched it, her finger tips caressed the exquisite little box, which John Curtis Morgan, attorney-at-law, and her employer for three years, had given her as a Christmas present the first year she had worked for him. He had laughed at her for using it as a clip box, reminding her that he had expected her to add it to her dressing table knickknacks, and she had defended herself lamely, unable to tell him that she kept it here in the office because her heart was here, rather than in the furnished room she rented by the week.

"He said three o'clock, but that means any time before half past," Nan reflected indulgently, as she added the original copy of the brief to the stack of letters she had typed earlier in the day. "Court had adjourned early. That means that the prosecution 'rested' before Mr. Morgan expected them to—He'll be dreadfully tired and all keyed-up. Maybe—" and oddly enough her eyes sparkled and her flush deepened at the thought—"he'll want me to work tonight. So much to do—last minute stuff; witnesses to subpoena; his notes to be written up—"

ENTERING the office marked "Mr. Morgan"—the other office of the suite was shared by the middle-aged clerk and the young lawyer who worked for Mr. Morgan on salary—Nan deposited her tray of finished work on the desk, made even straighter a neat stack of unfolded letters received that day; cast a measuring glance at the heavy onyx ink well; blew a few grains of dust from the shining surface beyond the spotless new green blotter; adjusted the window shade so that the slanting rays of the November sun should not strike into the eyes of the man who would soon sit at that desk, held a spread palm over the concealed radiator to make sure that heat was coming up—

She was interrupted by the sound of the outer door's opening and closing. In a flash her small body was across the room, her hand upon the knob of the dividing door.

"Hello, Nan! Blake back yet? Did Preston call?"

The very tall, very thin man tossed his hat upon a knob of the "tree" and shrugged out of his gray tweed topcoat. His black hair, winging upward in a natural pompadour from an extremely high and broad forehead, was shot through with threads of silver. Nan never saw a silver fox pelt without thinking, with a sharp contraction of the heart, of that silver-necked mane of John Curtis Morgan's. His black eyes shone now with the brilliance of fatigue and excitement. Nan Carroll thought—and had thought since the day she first saw him—that he was the most distinguished-looking man she had ever seen.

"Mr. Blake isn't here yet," Nan answered eagerly, her eyes sweeping over him and noting every sign of fatigue. "He telephoned from the sheriff's office, where he's waiting for Buck. I telephoned Mr. Preston when I had not heard from him by 12 o'clock, and made an appointment for you for half past four—here," she added triumphantly. "I knew you'd be tired."

A humorous smile zigzagged across Morgan's thin face, twitching the wide, sensitive mouth, and settling in his deep-set eyes. There was tender, teasing friendliness in his deep voice as he answered:

"Good girl! I don't know how you do it. I honestly believe you'd make Cal Coolidge come here if I happened to want to consult him about something. A busy, important man like Preston—Oh, this is splendid, Nan! I didn't think you'd have time to finish this brief before I got back. That clears the decks for us to work on this mass of stuff I brought from court. Brainerd sprang two surprise witnesses on us this afternoon, and didn't call three I thought he was banking on. Rested at half past two and caught me not ready to open—"

Nan followed him into his private office, her small round face alight with excitement. "I'll bet he didn't call Barker and that Fleming woman. I told you he wouldn't! He didn't dare! Of course you're going to subpoena the Fleming woman yourself and make her talk—"

"A I?" Morgan laughed, but his tired eyes shot her a glance of respect. "I suppose I'll have to, if you say so. Tell Blake to attend to it, when he comes in, won't you? Now, to get down to work," he sighed, a long, thin, sensitive hand reaching automatically for the stack of new mail on his desk.

"Not quite yet," Nan corrected him briskly. "You just sit there and rest for a minute. Shut your eyes and don't dare think of a thing until I get back."

She paused at the door, to make sure that her commands were obeyed. The long figure relaxed in the big swivel chair; with a deep sigh, as if he were expelling the poison of fatigue, John Curtis Morgan closed his eyes, but his wide mouth twitched humorously.

IN less than a minute Nan was back, stepping softly, and carrying a tall glass of milk on an octagonal plate of pale green glass, which also bore a stack of crisp raisin biscuits.

"Drink every drop and eat every crumb!" she commanded, with a greater show of assurance than she felt. "I'll bet my next week's salary you didn't eat a bite of lunch. It's a crime the way you neglect your health."

John Curtis Morgan stared at her blankly for a moment, then broke into a series of delighted chuckles.

"Funny little Nan!" he gazed at her fondly, but he reached for the glass and drank half of the milk before setting it down again, drank eagerly, hungrily, so that Nan almost hugged herself with delight at the success of her latest scheme for her great man's comfort.

"I've ordered a pint of half-and-half a day for you—half milk and half cream," she confessed. "You need it, really you do, Mr. Morgan. You work so hard and forget to eat until someone shoves food at you—Now, tell me what Brainerd did today. I'll get my notebook and we'll get your notes on his witnesses into shape. I'm crazy to hear what Brody testified."

A minute later they were hard at it, Morgan's sensitive hands hovering over his scribbled notes, his deep voice recounting in detail the story of the day in court. He was defending a young girl, formerly the switchboard operator of a fashionable country club, indicted on a charge of blackmailing members of the club. The board of directors, believing in the girl's innocence, had retained Morgan to defend her and, incidentally, to vindicate the management of the club in the eyes of the public.

"It's an ugly mess," the lawyer frowned. "Cornell looks as if he could kick himself from here to Jericho for ever having brought the charges, and Brainerd is up against a stone wall himself, trying to get a bunch of witnesses to testify that would rather be shot than be dragged upon a witness stand. But it looks pretty black for Grace, Nan. I wish I were sure—"

"I'm sure she's innocent," Nan interrupted vehemently. "I wouldn't have begged you to take the case if I hadn't been positive. There's something big behind this scandal, Mr. Morgan! That Fleming woman—listen! When you get her on the stand, ask her—"

She was off then, reviewing the evidence from memory, her pencil tapping out her points excitedly, her eyes glistening with zeal, her cheeks carnation-bright, and the man on the other side of the pulled-out leaf of the desk listened with flattering concentration, his own pencil making an occasional note.

When she paused for breath, Morgan nodded slowly. "I believe you're right. Of course I wouldn't have taken the case if I hadn't believed, beyond a reasonable doubt, that she was innocent. I've never yet defended a crook and I'd rather starve than begin. The afternoon papers are going to say that Brainerd's got the case sewed up in a sack but I'll be damned if he has! That Fleming woman, as you say—"

"You'll bust his case wide open!" Nan boasted staunchly. "Remember, the jury half believes in her innocence to begin with, just because John Curtis Morgan is defending her. Every voter in the county knows that you turned down a hundred-thousand-dollar fee to defend those pavement contractors just because you knew they were a gang of crooks, and that you told Havemeyer that all his millions couldn't buy your services when he was trying to keep his son out of the pen. You know what, John Curtis Morgan?" she challenged him.

"What?" he teased her, obviously pleased but trying to pretend a vast preoccupation with the notes on his desk.

"When you've won this case—as you're going to do!—the papers are going to begin calling you the greatest criminal lawyer in the state, and that's a pretty big honor for a man only 36 years old to have won! Why, most men your age are still fiddling around hoping for a junior partnership in an established firm!"

"Oh, Nan, Nan!" he admonished her humorously, shaking his head. "You're seeing me too big, much bigger than I am! And if I don't watch out you're going to give me such a swelled head that I'll be laughed out of court. But, seriously, Nan," and his voice changed, became simple, direct and sincere, while his eyes held hers unwaveringly, "if I have gone a little farther than I had any right to, it's because I've had the breaks, and—the best secretary in the country. I'm not such an egotistical ass that I can't see how much you've helped—"

ABOVE the pounding of blood in her ears Nan Carroll heard a quick, imperious tattoo upon the door. That particular knock had a peculiar magic of its own, for instantly the two people within the private office were transformed. Happiness, which had glowed in Nan's eyes like twin candles on an altar, was snuffed out, leaving her round, childish face pale and taut. In that instant she became the model secretary, or, rather, the model secretary as that part of the world unfamiliar with the camaraderie of the office pictures her. She became "Miss Carroll," a little prim, very impersonal, subservient, remote. Her back stiffened and automatically she poised her pencil above her notebook in the respectful attitude of a secretary awaiting dictation.

And in that instant John Curtis Morgan, attorney-at-law, disappeared. It was the eager voice of a lover-husband who called out joyously, welcomingly: "Come in!" It was an ardent boy, in spite of 36 years and a silver-fox pelt, who sprang to his feet, forgetting Nan Carroll, forgetting Grace Cox, forgetting his fatigue, thinking only of the woman who had knocked imperiously upon his door.

"Come in, darling! Oh, hello, Sonny-Boy! Out shopping with Mother? It's great to see you both—"

Nan's enormous brown eyes, apparently as unseeing and blank as circles of brown velvet, took in every detail of the family scene that was being enacted as if she were not present. She saw Morgan kiss his wife, flinched a little as she noted Iris Morgan's casual, arrogant acceptance of that mark of her husband's adoration, felt a throb of pity for her employer as she saw the six-year-old boy refuse petulantly to be kissed. Then she braced herself for Iris Morgan's greeting.

"How do you do, Nan? Gorgeous day, isn't it? I'm simply mad for new clothes. Be prepared to pay out every penny Jack has in the bank when this month's bills come in! And, oh, by the way, draw me a check for a hundred, won't you?" she added in a tone she might have used to a servant. "I hate to be limited to the shops where I have charge accounts when I'm on a buying orgy, as I am today. Some of the cunningest shoes at Martin's, Jack," she turned explanatorily to her husband. "And bags at the Petite Paris Shoppe!"

Nan, forced to listen as she obediently wrote the check which Iris Morgan demanded, heard her employer answer eagerly, like a boy flattered at being noticed and anxious to please:

"That so, sweetheart, I hope you find just what you want. I wish I had time to go with you, but I'd be so busy looking at you that I'd not be a very good judge of shoes or bags."

"Silly Jack!" Iris Morgan shrugged and moved away so that his hand, which was stretching out to close upon hers, was defeated and quivered a little.

Nan saw the quiver, and her own hand, busy with the check, trembled with anger and sympathy. Not that John Curtis Morgan was angry or conscious of need for her sympathy, she told herself fiercely. He was conscious now of nothing in the world but his wife's breathtaking beauty. And, as always, it hurt Nan intolerably to see him humble and eager and abject before that beauty, as if he could never quite believe that he was its legal possessor.

IRIS MORGAN let her tall, graceful body sink languidly into the chair which her husband had hastened to draw up to the desk for her. And Nan was not too busy filling in the stub of Morgan's checkbook to see that Iris disposed her body as if she were sitting for an artist, the picture to be entitled, "Portrait of Lady of Quality."

Long white throat arched as the head, freed of its close-fitting hat, rested in profile against the high back of the chair; glittering tendrils of red-gold hair curling against the polished walnut; the one eye which the profile pose revealed surveying her husband with lazy indifference but not without challenge that he appreciate the picture she made. Three years had not been long enough to accustom Nan Carroll to the amazing beauty of Iris Morgan's eyes. Strange eyes, that had a color all their own: the vivid blue-green that poets ascribe to tropical seas.

"If only she would be nice to him I wouldn't hate her so!" Nan told herself fiercely as she laid the check before Morgan to sign. "Silly Jack!" she quoted in silent fury. "Imagine calling him Jack! She makes him silly, makes him small—and he's big, big! She doesn't dream—or care!—how big he is! Oh, I wish he wouldn't look at her like that!" And she could have cried out with pain at the spectacle of the man she believed to be great gazing with humble, pleading, love-sick eyes upon the woman who wore his name as nonchalantly and insolently as she wore the clothes he paid for.

AS Iris Morgan rested picturesquely in the high-backed chair her six-year-old son leaned, just as picturesquely, against her knee, as if he were subconsciously obeying his mother's command to fit into the picture. Nan thought, with fiery contempt, that Iris Morgan would never bother to be seen with her son if he were not the handsomest of all the ornaments with which she decked her beauty. But since little Curtis Morgan was, in his way, as beautiful as his mother, she had worn him, from his babyhood until now, as another woman might wear a corsage of orchids, or lead a prize-winning Pekinese upon a leash.

The child's eyes were large, liquid-black, fringed with such lashes as a chorus girl would sell her soul for, and curiously mournful, even when he was being his most devilish. Nan had watched him develop from a fragile baby of three to fragile little boyhood, and she loved him, in spite of the faults which his mother seemed to delight in encouraging, loved him because there was so much more of John Curtis Morgan in him than of Iris Morgan. Loved him, too, because Morgan adored him and because Iris, for all her lazy indulgence of his constant irritable demands, did not truly love him, was merely proud of him because he was an ornament to her beauty.

The child was urging a demand upon his mother in a low, whining singsong: "I wanna see the dog in the picture show, Mother. I wanna police dog just like the movie dog, Mother! I wanna—"

Iris's blue-green eyes swept him with amused indifference. "Mother's going shopping lover. Curt's going to stay with Nana, like a good boy. He loves staying with his Nana Carroll, doesn't he?" And she rumbled the silky black crest of his hair—so like his father's—and smiled lazily at Nan.

Dismay and anger flooded Nan Carroll, as they had flooded her heart a hundred other such miserable times in the last three years. "Nana!" As if she were a nursemaid! So she was to take care of him again, while her employer's wife shopped in untrammelled freedom! Was Morgan going to permit the outrage, when he knew as well as did his secretary that there was enough work to be done to keep them both busy until nine or 10 o'clock, if the lawyer was to go to court the next morning properly prepared to defend his client? But—why ask? Of course he was! He had never in his life denied his wife anything she wanted, whether it was a mink coat or the services of his secretary.

"We're pretty busy," Morgan deprecated. "That Grace Cox case, you know, darling. The prosecution rested today, but of course," he hastened to reassure Iris, whose eyes were flashing green-blue fire at him, "Curt will be very good. Won't you, Sonny-boy?"

"Don't wanna stay with Nana," the little boy protested, his great black eyes mournful, his beautiful mouth silky.

"Be sweet, lover, and Mother will give you a great big piece of chocolate cake with your ice cream for dessert tonight," Iris promised in her lazy, sweet voice as she accepted her husband's check without thanks.

"She's ruining his stomach with her 'great big pieces of chocolate cake' and all the candy he wants," Nan thought disgustedly. "And she doesn't care! It's less trouble to her to indulge him than to discipline him. And I believe she actually likes for him to be thin and frail, because he's prettier than red-checked, robust children. Oh, I hate her!"

Aloud she said, in a flat, even voice which she scorned to make coaxing: "Come along, Curt. I'll let you write on your own special typewriter. We'll both be busy. Nan's got an awful lot of work to do, and so has your father."

"You're such a good little thing, Nan," Iris thanked her carelessly, in a tone Nan had frequently heard her use toward Curtis' nurse.

AS Nan left the private office, with Curtis' hot, dry little hand in hers, she told herself despairingly, contemptuously: "She doesn't even know you hate her, you little fool! And she doesn't hate you at all. She rather likes you, in your place, and your place, Nan Carroll, is, in her estimation, that of an efficient upper-class servant. And as long as she's in the office, that's the way he thinks of you, too, because she makes him."

"She blights him, blights me, takes all of our real worth and significance away from us, so there won't be anything of importance in the place but her beauty. And he doesn't know what a fool she makes of him, doesn't know anything when she's around except that he's mad about her and that she's the most beautiful woman in the world. But what do I care?" She blinked furiously at the tears in her brown eyes.

She was establishing a whining, dictatorial child at a table on which she had placed an old typewriter reserved for the purpose when Iris Morgan came out of the private office, adjusting her smart black hat at an enchanting angle, so that red-gold curls were pressed against the cream and rose of her cheek.

"I'll call for my two boys at six, Nan," she announced, with superb indifference to the fact that Nan was supposed to be free at five. "Be good, sweetheart, and Mother will bring you something nice."

"Want stuffed dates with lotsa nuts," Curtis specified threateningly.

Iris laughed from the doorway. "Greedy little pig. It's a wonder you don't get disgustingly fat. But I suppose no child of mine could be fat," she added complacently, glancing down the long, slim lines of her body—the kind of figure for which modest design "confections" and "creations," not mere dresses.

"And oh, Nan dear, please get me a couple of matinee tickets for Saturday. 'The Constant Lover' with the original New York cast—so the advertisements say, though they're sure to be second-rate hams, worse luck!—is at the Woodleigh this week. Don't let my bad child bother you, or Jack will blame me if he loses this scandalous Grace Cox case. Why he can't be a corporation lawyer and be respectable is more than I can see! Just vanity, I think! He adores ranting before a jury and saving murderers from the gallows. But I mustn't get off onto my pet grievance or the shops will be closed before I get a thing bought. Good-by, lover." She blew a kiss to the child and was gone.

After five minutes of bored pecking at his typewriter keys, Curtis was at Nan's elbow, joggling it impatiently, so that she struck a wrong key—a tragedy to Nan Carroll, who prided herself on pages of finished work which had never been insulted by the rasp of an eraser.

"Want paste and scissors and colored crayons," the little boy demanded petulantly.

While she was getting them for him, he climbed with impish quickness into her chair and began to strike letters helter-skelter upon her beloved typewriter, spoiling the half-sheet of beautifully typed notes. For the next half hour she wrestled desperately with work, a small boy's irritable demands, the telephone, which rang three times, and the swiftly rising tide of her anger.

"I'm going to tell him a thing or two if he fires me for it!" she stormed in her hot heart. "Letting his silly wife impose on me and turn me into a nursemaid! I won't put up with it another day!"

But when the buzzer sounded to summon her into his private office, her face cleared, became eager again. He had never needed her that she had not responded eagerly—

"Say, Nan, I wondered if it had occurred to you that Martha Fleming herself wrote those blackmailing letters."

All her anger and resentment were forgotten for the moment. He was himself again—John Curtis Morgan, the greatest criminal lawyer in the state, and she was herself again—his efficient and valued secretary.

"Occurred to me?" Nan laughed joyously. "I've known it all along and was sure you'd feel it, too. Why, look—"

And they were hard at it again, brown bobbed head close to silver-and-black, arguing, interrupting, contradicting each other in the blessed good-fellowship of work which was dearer than life to Nan Carroll.

SHE was so elated over the progress she and the lawyer had made in 15 minutes on the hitherto baffling case that not even the havoc which Curtis had wrought in the outer office could completely destroy her happiness. He had cut paper soldiers out of one of the carbon copies of the brief which it had taken her two hours to type and which would have to be done over; he had smeared paste over half the surface of her desk; had spilled ink on the thick taupe rug which was her especial pride, and had finger-printed a great stack of John Curtis Morgan's swankiest envelopes.

Long before six o'clock her patience and her temper were almost exhausted. At half past five, when she was in the office occupied by young Blake and Evans, the clerk, the telephone rang. Before she could reach her desk to answer it Curtis had the receiver off the hook and was shrilling into it: "Hello, hello! This is Mr. Morgan's office!"

If he had not been John Curtis Morgan's adored son Nan might have slapped him; as it was, her tired brown eyes blazed at him as she snatched the instrument out of his hands.

"That you, Nan?" a man's compassionate voice came soothingly over the wire. "You don't have to tell me you're busy. I recognized the young hopeful's voice. But you're going to have dinner with me, remember."

"Oh, Willis, I can't!" Nan wailed. "I've got enough work to keep me busy till 10 o'clock at least, and I simply can't dawdle over dinner."

"You can and will," Willis Todd assured her. "Then I'll go to a movie to pass the time till you're through slaving. I'm not going to be cheated out of my date so easily, young woman. I've got a lot to say to you, Nan, honey, and you'd better make up your mind to listen."

"Amusement and amusement fought with fatigue in Nan's face as she hung up the receiver. So Willis Todd was suddenly becoming masterful! Funny, but sweet—"

"Nana, I wanna bottle of ginger ale! I want it right now!" Curtis woke her from her reverie, his voice shrill and petulant.

"Nana!" Nan repeated the hated perversion of her name with loathing. "Nursemaid Nana!" Iris Morgan's servant! If she listened to Willis Todd, she need never hear that degrading nickname again—

19 TENTH ST.MRS. NOBLET
PASSES AWAYDeath Takes Pioneer of Gladstone After a Long Illness

Death took a pioneer resident of Gladstone Monday when Mrs. Victoria Noblet, wife of John Noblet, passed away at the St. Francis hospital, Escanaba, where she had been taken, three weeks ago, in a critical condition.

Mrs. Noblet's death, at 10:30 o'clock, came as a relief from illness from which she had been suffering for the past five years. Her condition had been serious from December, 1928. An operation for relief from gall stones was performed in an effort to relieve her suffering, but this was of little avail in view of her critical illness, and her death came Monday morning.

The body was taken to the Ailo Funeral Home in Escanaba to be prepared for burial.

Funeral arrangements are not complete, pending word of the arrival of relatives.

Mrs. Victoria Noblet was born in Canada on July 26, 1857. Her marriage to John Noblet took place in Gladstone in 1892 when the city was only a pioneer village, and she and Mr. Noblet, among the first settlers here, had made their home in Gladstone since that time, residing continuously in the residence they established at 308 Minnesota avenue.

Had Mrs. Noblet lived until July 6, she and her husband would have celebrated their thirty-seventh wedding anniversary.

Two Sons

Mrs. Noblet is survived by her husband, John Noblet, two sons, Eugene and Ublad, all of Gladstone, and one brother, Eugene Martel, of Alberta, Canada.

Five grandchildren also survive.

Mrs. Noblet was a member of Sacred Heart Court, Catholic Order of Foresters.

Mrs. Noblet was widely known throughout Gladstone and word of her passing Monday was received everywhere when expressions of genuine regret.

Joe Too Generous;
Boys Depart With His Only Flivver

Two boys took too much for granted in Joe Baker's hospitality at Cooks Sunday night. The young travelers came along from the east, seeking a ride to their destination at Escanaba. Joe took them in, gave them food and refreshments, and said that he would gladly give them a ride as far as Pine Grove that ought to help them on their way.

The hitch hikers showed their appreciation for such generosity, and accompanied the Cooks man to the Pine Grove resort, where they joined him in partaking of some more pop and ice cream and this and that. When Joe was ready to return home, he noted that the boys were gone, and concluded they had found a ride to Escanaba. They had, but it was in Joe's car, for the roadster was gone too when Joe went out to get it.

Word was dispatched to Escanaba, asking authorities to be on the look-out for the travelers, and Joe expected to get his machine back in due time.

LOIS WILSON AT GERO

Beta Sigma Omicron, one of the leading college sororities has signally honored Lois Wilson who plays opposite Conrad Nagel in one of the featured roles in Warner Bros. production of "Kid Gloves", a rousing melodrama of crookdom which is now playing at the Gero theatre.

Members of the sorority are to be found in nearly all of the women's colleges.

Miss Wilson attended the Alabama Normal college with the intention of becoming a teacher, but gave up the idea when she was the winner in a beauty contest and was given a role in a Universal production. She was later selected by J. Warren Kerrigan to play a typical college girl in one of his pictures. She has played the wholesome, American type of girl so often that she is identified with the type in the minds of picture patrons. Her election of the Beta Sigma Omicron sorority puts the stamp of approval of thousands of young American women upon the kind of role she portrays on the screen.

RAIN CAUSES
PLANE DELAY

Rain at Escanaba Monday morning delayed the departure of the Reid-Murdoch Monarch food ship "Independence," which was scheduled to arrive at the Manistique airfield about 10:30. The weather was fair here, and a large crowd had gathered when word was received by telephone that the big tri-motor plane would be held back by the weather and would not start until afternoon.

Members of the Schoolcraft county board of supervisors motored out to the airport in a body to await the arrival of the monoplane, but returned to the city when it was learned that it would not arrive until about 1:30 p. m.

The advance "expanding" truck loaded with Monarch products arrived in Manistique about 8 a. m., and was at the field ready to greet the plane on its local stop.

Things got too dull around Fishdam park for Peter Foye's bear the other day, and bruin decided to strike out for himself. He slipped the collar and hiked for the woods. Pete took up the trail, however, and wasn't far behind.

The bear couldn't resist the attraction of a piece of cake which Mr. Foye carried with him, and he allowed himself to be coaxed back to the cage.

THEATRES

RIALTO

Every mother's daughter who has a pretty face and perhaps poignant dreams of being a great movie star will spend an extremely interesting two hours at the Rialto Theatre this week, where the widely-heralded Sterling production, "Stranded," is playing. For the theme of this gripping drama is calculated to worm right into the softest-veiled desires of our daughters—it tells the tale of a typical American girl who, like the thousands of her sisters in America whose eyes turn to Hollywood and ephemeral fame, actually goes to the film center of the world, causing a profound sacrifice on the part of her doting mother, and there—let down with a crash.

AND

Based on true happenings in the annals of the Metropolitan police, "You Can't Beat the Law," the newest Rayart super-special to reach the screen, is a vivid picturization of underworld life and the continuous battle between right and wrong—the forces of law and order against those who prey upon society, with the offenders ceaselessly hunted until they are brought to justice.

Lila Lee heads the cast, which includes Cornelius Keefe, Betty Francisco and Warner Richmond, and each player gives a sincere portrayal of the role assigned to him. Trem Carr produced it for Rayart release, with Charles J. Hunt directing. The story is by H. H. Van Loan.

Mrs. J. H. Murphy

St. Paul's of Gladstone Has Largest Delegation at Meeting

Rev. Theophil Hoffmann, pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran church, and a large delegation of members of the congregation, attended the fourth annual Sunday School Teachers' convention of the Lake Superior Conference, Wisconsin Synod, Sunday at Marquette.

Sections of the convention were held at Trinity Evangelical Lutheran church of which Rev. W. Roepke is pastor.

A large number of members of St. Paul's congregation was in attendance with the Gladstone church furnishing the great single delegation, sixteen in number.

The delegation included Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Karnitz, Arvilla and Miles Karnitz, Ruth Tackman, Rose Nehmer, Bernice Barber, William Lundine, Mildred Tryan, Irma Proehl, Mrs. Albert Proehl, Pastor and Mrs. Hoffmann and several children, members of the families represented.

Rev. Mr. Hoffmann delivered a paper at the convention on the topic, "Conducting a Sunday School Teachers' Meeting."

The convention was opened with a model lesson of the Junior Department, Miss Zerbel of Marquette being in charge. The topic for the lesson was "Paul is Taken to Rome."

At 10:30 o'clock (Standard Time) a divine service was held with sermon by the Rev. W. G. Fuhlbrigge from Stambaugh, Mich. He based his remarks on John, 8: 30-32. "As He spoke these words, many believed in Him. Then said Jesus to those Jews which believed on Him, 'If ye continue in My word, then are ye My disciples indeed, and ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free.'"

At 12 o'clock a banquet was served in the church social room. About 100 participating, with A. A. Gentz from Powers, Mich., serving as toastmaster.

The afternoon sessions were opened with a brief devotion led by Pastor Melvin Croft from Florence, Wis., chairman of the Sunday School Convention. After the minutes of the last year's meeting at Stambaugh, Mich., had been read the election of officers followed. The result was that Pastor Croft from Florence was re-elected chairman and Miss Marie Peters of Escanaba, secretary-treasurer.

A very interesting and instructive essay was read by Mr. Louis Sarrahn, Superintendent of the Lutheran day school at Algoma, Wis., his topic was "Recitation and the Art of Questioning." Mr. Sarrahn has for thirty-three years taught school, therefore he was very well qualified to render such an essay. No doubt, all of our Sunday School Teachers benefited greatly by this topic.

A. H. GROESBECK
CLUB SPEAKER

Report on Rotary Convention Given at Joint Meeting Monday

A detailed and intensely interesting report on the international convention of Rotary held May 27-31 at Dallas, Tex., was given before a joint meeting of the Escanaba and Gladstone Rotary clubs Monday noon by A. H. of Escanaba, president of the Escanaba Rotary.

The meeting followed the Rotary luncheon at Wass hall, temporary meeting place, at which the Escanaba members were guests.

President Groesbeck gave in detail interesting facts in connection with the convention, from the time delegates of the Tenth and Thirteenth districts left Chicago by special train through the closing sessions.

The train, which carried the delegates to Texas, Mr. Groesbeck said, stopped at various points of interest, including Springfield, Ill., where Rotarians visited the burial spot of Abraham Lincoln, these visits adding to the enjoyment and interest of the trip.

High tribute to the splendid hospitality of Dallas in its entertainment of visiting Rotarians was paid by the speaker, who quoted, as one instance of the fine spirit of friendliness, the placing of 3,000 individually owned cars at the disposal of the delegates to take them on tours wherever and whenever they wished to go.

Mr. Groesbeck spoke of the delegates from many foreign countries present and emphasized the spirit of good fellowship which prevailed at all sessions and the progress made in carrying out the Rotary ideal and principle, the bringing of all countries closer together in the spirit of undivided and unselfish service.

New York, June 24 (AP)—The mid-year money pinch began to day when the call money rate was marked up from 7 to 10 per cent and the stock market, which had opened with another display of strength, ran into a heavy wave of selling which left final quotations irregular. Most of the early gains, which ran from 2 to 5 points in many instances, and much higher in a few specialties, were cut down or wiped out, and a rather long list of stocks closed with net declines of 1 to 4 points.

Trading started off at a brisk pace, several blocks of 5,000 to 10,000 shares changing hands in the early trading, but it slowed down later, and the day's total just crossed 3,000,000 shares mark.

Estimates of loans called during the day ranged from $50,000,000 to $80,000,000. Some of this represented the withdrawal of funds by corporations and others in preparation of mid-year settlements, and some of it the usual "window dressing" by banks in anticipation of a competitor's call on June 30. Call money renewed unchanged at 7 but advanced to 8, 9 and 10 as loans were called. This was the first time that the official rate has been 10 per cent since May 15, and some "outside loans" were reported to have been arranged as high as 12 per cent, indicating that a further rise in the official rate was likely this week. Time money rates also were somewhat firmer.

News Favorable

Except for the higher call money rates and reports of another substantial increase in California crude oil production last week, most of the day's news developments were favorable. Wheat raised about 3 cents a bushel but lost about half its gain. Younger steel plants were reported to be operating at practical capacity, a better demand was noted for copper, refined sugar prices were advanced and stockholders of the International Mercantile Marine Co., approved the recapitalization plan.

Some of the high-priced industrial and rail stocks were again whirled upward in rather spectacular fashion.

Curiously, General Motors and Radio Corporation common, which had been the subjects of "bear" attacks on the theory that they would be among the first to get down in a money pinch, made their best prices of the day after the maximum call money rate was posted, closing with net gains of 1 1/2 and 5 1/2 points, respectively. American Can also was heavily bought in the late trading, closing 2 1/2 points higher at 14 3/4, or less than 2 1/2 points below the year's high.

Coppers Under Pressure

Copper shares, with the exception of American Smelting, were under pressure on the theory that distribution was taking place in those issues. Anaconda opened with a block of 10,000 shares at 11 1/4, sold down to 11 1/4, and closed at 11 1/4, off 2 1/4 net.

Mexican Seaboard opened nearly 3 points higher on the announcement that its new Kennedy well showed such a tremendous volume of gas at 6410 feet that extreme measures were necessary to control the flow. Other oils were sluggish, Skelly selling down 2 points.

Rails, in which a big summer market has been predicted, started upward at the start, but the buying movement died down when money rates went up. At Western, Union Pacific and Pennsylvania all attained new high prices for the year, the last named selling at the best price in about 20 years.

Baldwin Locomotive, which is reported to be considering a 4 for 1 stock split up and the declaration of a stock dividend this week, sold down 9 points on a few transactions. The Fisher and Cutler interests, which control Baldwin, are reported to still have in mind a merger of Baldwin, Westinghouse Electric and other companies.

Foreign exchanges drifted within a rather narrow range, sterling cables holding around $4.84 13-16, making further gold imports likely.

The rise in wheat was attributed to reports of frost in Canada and a decrease in the domestic visible supply. Corn eased slightly on forecasts of better crop weather. Cotton closed unchanged at 50 cents a bale higher.

Army and Navy May Meet on Gridiron Next Fall

NEGOTIATIONS NOW UNDER WAY

Two-Year-Old Athletic Breach Will Probably Be Mended

Washington, June 24 (AP)—West Point and Annapolis may meet again on the football field next fall as a result of negotiations now under way between Secretary Wood and Secretary Adams to end the two-year suspension of athletic relations between the two academies over the eligibility rule.

Secretary Good announced today that he now is conferring with Secretary Adams with a view to reestablishing the relations which were broken off after the 1927 game.

Citing that both of the academies have completed their gridiron schedules for the next three years, Mr. Good declared that a contest next fall would have to be played in all probability outside the regular schedule inasmuch as neither team might find it possible or desirable to cancel games already scheduled.

The controversy which led to the athletic break arose over the naval academy's opposition to the position of West Point in not limiting players to three years of intercollegiate competition. The military academy has permitted cadets to play regardless of previous intercollegiate athletic participation, while Annapolis has enforced the three-year rule.

BALDWIN STARS IN WATER MEET

Escanaba Sportsman Wins Major Honors in Aquatic Carnival

Ted Baldwin, local aquatic sportsman, won the major honors at the first of the series of water carnivals to be held here during the summer for the purpose of promoting aquatic sports of the waters of Green Bay. The carnival was held at Oconto Sunday and Baldwin topped first place with his speedboat "Thompson Comet" in the first heat of the Class B races and won first again in the finals of this class. He was the only competitor to cop two first places at the carnival and as a result he was awarded the grand prize—a tachometer.

Phil Martin, the other Delta country entry at Oconto Sunday, was the victor of a mishap when the outboard motor on his craft, "The Spirit of Gladstone," slipped from its moorings and fell into eighteen feet of water. Martin had been tuning the motor and was ready to enter the race when the mishap occurred. The motor was recovered but Martin failed to get it started before the races were called and he was obliged to remain out of the contests.

Harry Hanson, Sturgeon Bay, suffered the only accident of the day when his boat capsized while rounding a curve. He was not injured, however, and he swam safely to shore. His motor did not drop from the boat because it had been fastened securely after Martin's motor had fallen into the bay. He recovered the boat with little difficulty.

5,000 See Events
About 5,000 persons witnessed the water carnival at Oconto which was run off in a very smooth fashion. The course was patrolled by Sturgeon Bay coast guards. The next of the series of Green Bay water carnivals will be held at Menominee and Marinette on July 7. Baldwin is entered in the races at that carnival. The series schedule calls for a similar event in Escanaba later in the season.

AMERICANS WIN AT WIMBLEDON

Yank Tennis Stars Survive First Round of Men's Singles

Wimbledon, England, June 24 (AP)—Bans thrills and major upsets. Wimbledon men's singles championships got under way today. Seven of the eighth Americans entered won their way past the first round, along with 57 others of the world's best court artists.

Big Bill Tilden, the ace of Uncle Sam's invaders, danced through a straight set victory, 6-1, 6-1, 6-2, with H. V. S. Dillon of Ireland to set the pace for his fellow countrymen. And all but E. G. Chandler, intercollegiate champion in 1925 and 1926 while attending California, followed suit. Chandler lost to the hard-hitting Texan, Wilmer Allison, who succeeded him as intercollegiate titleholder in 1927. Qualifying for the second round along with Tilden and Allison were Francis T. Turner, George Lott, John Hennessey, Wilbur Coen and Johnny Van Ryn.

Tilden's session against the Irishman served to give the lanky American the pace of the center court, which, during the coming two weeks, he must mainly wage his campaign for the Wimbledon title he gained in 1920 and 1921.

CUBS NOSE CUT PIRATES, 4 TO 3

Three Homers Win Series Final for Chicago Bruins

Chicago, June 24 (AP)—The Cubs finally won a game from the Pirates, taking the final of the series today by a 4 to 3 count.

Home runs by Cuyler, Wilson and Hornsby provided all of Chicago's runs, while Ervin Brame, the Pirate pitcher, accounted for two runs and gave Pittsburgh a temporary lead with his drive over the fence in right center in the fifth inning. Both pitchers, Brame and Charley Root, went the entire distance.

BENGALS TRIM CHICAGO, 13-4

Tigers Batter Faber From Mound; Sox Errors Aid Defeat

Detroit, June 24 (AP)—Urban Faber, the red-thatched veteran spitballer who in his last start against the Tigers held them to one hit, today was the victim of a ferocious battering as the Bengals defeated the White Sox, 13 to 4. Five Chicago errors contributed heavily to the Tiger score.

Emil Yde, although wild and hit ten times by the Sox, including a home run by Faber, weathered the game without serious trouble. Joe Dugan, who succeeded Faber, was as bad as his predecessor.

SOX, MIDGETS IN BIG GAME

Meet in Crucial Contest of Legion Junior Ball League

The Wells White Sox and Midgets will clash tomorrow night at 7 o'clock on the Wells diamond in one of the crucial contests of the American Legion Junior baseball league. The final game in the Delta county elimination series will be played June 29 at 2 o'clock on the Gladstone diamond when the Wells White Sox and Gladstone cross bats.

The county champion will play with Iron Mountain. It was stated by a Legion official yesterday. The Upper Peninsula championship series, however, will be played at some place designated by Joe Sturgeon, chief of Gladstone. At this time, which will probably be three days in length, the county champions will compete for peninsula honors. The peninsula champion will enter the state series, probably at Detroit. The state champion will compete in the national contest, and the winning team of this series will receive a free trip to the major league world series this fall.

The following teams have been registered by the local Legion post with their state office at Detroit: Garden White Sox, Rapid River Yankees, Rapid River Bulldogs, Wells White Sox, Midgets, Wolverines, Hummers, No. Escanaba Giants, Tigers, and Packers.

"Several local teams have been playing first class ball," it was stated yesterday by Elmer Swanson, one of the Legion officers in charge of the baseball elimination series. "If they continue this class of playing, Delta county should be represented in the finals, at least."

Bottle Floated 2,500 Miles
After having floated 2,500 miles in 43 days, a bottle was recently picked up at North Queensland. It had been dropped overboard on October 7, 1927, by a British vessel while in a most desolate part of the Pacific ocean, 1,000 miles north of the Fiji Islands. It was a message asking that it be returned to the meteorological office of the British air ministry, which is having 494 ships sailing the seven seas drop similar bottles every day in a plan of securing data to be used in tracking sea currents.

Diamond Ball Rules

Foul Hit.
Sec. 1. A foul hit is a legally batted ball that settles on foul territory between home and first base or home and third base, or that bounds past first or third base on foul territory, beyond first or third base, or while on or over foul ground, touches the person of the umpire or a player. This does not mean that a ball is fair if it is over foul ground, and the player is on fair ground. Many disputes arise over this point.

Rule 11
Foul Tip.
Sec. 1. A foul tip is a ball batted by the batsman while standing within the lines of his position that goes sharp and direct from the bat to the catcher's hands and is legally caught.

Rule 12
Bunting Order.
Sec. 1. After the first inning the first striker in each inning shall be the batsman whose name follows that of the last man who completed his "time at bat" in the preceding inning.

Rule 13
Called Games.
If the umpire calls a game at any time after four innings have been completed, the score shall be that of the last equal innings played, except that if the side second at bat shall have scored in an unequal number of innings, or before the completion of an unfinished inning, at least one run more than the side first at bat, the score of the game shall be the total number of runs each team has made.

Rule 14
Ball Not in Play.
In case of an illegally batted ball, a balk, foul hit ball, interference with the fielder or batsman, or a fast hit ball striking a base-runner or umpire before touching a fielder, the ball shall not be considered in play until it is held by the pitcher standing in his position, and the umpire shall have called, "Play."

Rock Wins Third Game in D.A.C. Loop From Masonville
Rock, Michigan, June 23 (Special)—Bunching six hits in the seventh inning and four in the eighth for a total of nine runs, Rock won its third game in four starts in the D. A. C. League, against Masonville here today, by a 14 to 9 score.

The first five innings were a nice pitching duel by two high school slab artists, Hollenbeck of Masonville and Rabideau of Rock. In the sixth, Rabideau weakened when his support failed momentarily. In this inning, Masonville scored four runs on two hits, two errors and a walk. Pilon relieved Rabideau in the seventh and pitched nice ball for the remaining three innings, allowing but one hit and striking out four men.

Hollenbeck did some nice pitching, striking out nine men, but he was not so effective in the pinches. Dementier, Masonville catcher, got four singles in four trips to the plate. Kleiber, Rock backstop, poled out the longest hit of the game, a triple that drove in two runs, but he was out on a close decision at the plate when he tried to stretch it to a home run.

DIAMOND BALL LEAGUE OPENS

Large Crowd Sees Legion Whip Necos in First Contest

Amid the howling of frenzied fans who had assembled to witness the opening hostilities of the Diamond Ball league, the Legion nine vanquished the Necos at 8 to 5 at Ludington park in the first game of a doubleheader last night at 6:30 o'clock. In the second game a stalwart batsman pounded opposing hurlers unmercifully and Lloyd's Hitters defeated the Tie Plant, 24 to 16.

Mayor William H. Needham pitched the first all-around perfect strike. Senator Herbert J. Ruston who stood behind home plate released the ball with professional ease.

The opening game was virtually air-tight up to the sixth inning when the Legionnaires went on a batting spree and distributed Rockberg's offering all over the lot in a shower of clean hits that netted six runs.

POLICE SEEK DRUNK DRIVER

Escanaba Party Narrowly Escapes Death in Accident

Three arrests followed a motor mishap Sunday night on M-35 when a sedan, driven by Harold Artinson, of Marquette, crashed into a coach driven by Lawrence Havisto, 203 North Eighteenth street. Mr. and Mrs. Havisto were returning to Escanaba when the Marquette car approached from the opposite direction and swerved into Havisto's automobile, damaging it beyond repair. None was injured.

Deputy Sheriff Ernest Carlson of Perkins arrested George McDonald, one of the Marquette party, for being drunk while the others escaped into the woods. Yesterday members of the Delta county sheriff's department secured the arrest at Marquette of James Boxer, and last night were seeking Artinson with a warrant charging him with operating a motor vehicle under the influence of liquor.

Boxer was arraigned in the court of Justice Henry E. Ranguette yesterday but pleaded not guilty to a drunk charge. His case was continued for hearing until July 12.

After the accident Sunday night it was learned that the Marquette automobile had driven through Gladstone at terrific rate of speed, and were being chased by Gladstone authorities when the accident occurred on M-35.

Ladies Band Plays At County Farm Sunday Afternoon

The scene at the Delta county poor farm Sunday afternoon when the Escanaba Ladies band, under the direction of Joseph Greenfield, played for the inmates will never be forgotten by the many visitors who attended the concert and visited the building after the program.

Gathered on the lawn of the institution, the fifty patients enjoyed the program of band music and the members of the band were at their best for they played for these unfortunate who have no other form of entertainment except that furnished by visitors at the farm. Three of the patients who are bedridden enjoyed the music through the open windows of their rooms.

Many cars from this city, Flat Rock and Gladstone were parked in the vicinity of the building and judging from the sound of the siren horns the occupants also enjoyed the peppy program.

When the band played "War Songs of the Boys in Blue," a medley of old-time tunes, the older men in the audience gave a prolonged applause and all stood at attention as the band concluded the program by playing "America."

Mr. and Mrs. Napoleon Gauthier who have charge of the institution, were kept busy showing the many visitors around and were complimented on the cleanliness of the place. They also express their heartfelt thanks to the band for coming to the farm and entertaining in such a splendid manner.

An incident which brought tears to the eyes of many in the large audience was when an aged inmate hardly able to get about with the use of a cane, presented the manager of the band with a bouquet of wild roses and other wild flowers which he had gathered as a token of appreciation for the music played at the farm by the ladies band.

Conservation Department's Activity Covers Wide Range

Lansing, June 24.—"The state department of conservation is engaged in a wide range of activities concerned with the administration and conservation of the natural resources of Michigan than is generally known," said Director George R. Hogarth.

"We are engaged in a persistent effort to restock the streams and lakes with game and commercial fish, operating seventeen state fish hatcheries to maximum capacity to keep pace with the inroads of resident and out-state fishermen. We maintain a game farm at Mason for the propagation of the ringneck pheasant, and rearing stations in three other places in the state; operate 65 state parks for outdoor recreation—last year 5,500,000 visitors used these parks—and we enforce the fish and game laws of the state. These facets of our organization appear on the surface and are well known. However, there are many others of a more fundamental character.

Planting Forests.

"The excellent reforestation record set this spring by the forestry division is a fine achievement. 8,500 acres of state forest lands were planted with more than five million trees, a forty percent increase over the accomplishment of any similar planting season. It will be five years before these seedlings will show above the underbrush and twenty years before they can be called trees. But this acreage has been added to the potential forest of Michigan, planned and planted to meet the recreational and economic demands of human life twenty, fifty, or a hundred years hence. The total acreage which has been reforested in Michigan since 1904 is 62,755 acres; 65% of the work has been done during the past five years.

"The forest lands of Michigan are guarded by one hundred and ten fire towers which are manned throughout the entire fire season. A constant educational program of forest fire prevention is maintained. In this connection we receive invaluable aid from the Michigan newspapers and other publications. Fighting and preventing forest fires are tasks that are never done, and results are measured in the reduction of the numbers of fires started. This is accomplished through education and preventive measures. Quick detection and prompt action on the part of the fire fighting units exercise a marked measure of control over the fires which do start and gain headway. The protection from the menace of fire is a necessary and ever-present part of rebuilding the forest and wild life resources of this state.

Economic Survey.

"The land economic survey division of the department has for the past seven years been making an inventory of the lands, forests, water and development in Michigan's northland to assist that region to a more complete and substantial utilization of its natural resources for industry, farming, forestry, and recreation. The inventory is made by counties and published in the form of maps and reports. Up to the

A typical case of Konjola at work was described the other day by Mrs. Lucie Potter, 1434 Washington Heights, Ann Arbor who made this statement:

"For twelve years I did not know what a well day was. I first had stomach and kidney troubles and then rheumatism developed. My stomach was so disordered that I had to almost starve myself. My kidneys were weak and my body was racked by rheumatic pains.

"I believe my condition was beyond relief when I started on the Konjola treatment. Imagine my surprise and delight when four bottles of this marvelous medicine banished all my pains and worries. Why, it was just like magic. All the money in the world could not buy the new and glorious health that just four bottles of this astounding medicine gave me."

tions equally as pressing confront us in the administration of Michigan conservation. The first step in their solution is a complete understanding of the subject involved, accurate knowledge of every factor concerned. Here research, survey, and investigation enter into our work, supplying a solid foundation on which to base future actions. And these actions can be successful and beneficial only as the principles governing them are accurate and inclusive.

"The conservation department is engaged in the biggest outdoor job in Michigan. There is no place for chance or luck in affairs concerning the restoration and maintenance of fish, game, and other natural resources. By means of investigations, surveys, and research work we chart the field we plan to cover, avoid the costly errors of inadequate preparation, and can reasonably expect to obtain desirable results."

ROTARY CLUBS HEAR REPORTS

Escanaba-Gladstone Organizations Hold Joint Luncheon

Members of the Escanaba and Gladstone Rotary clubs met in joint session at Gladstone at noon yesterday, when President A. H. Groesbeck, of the Escanaba club, made a most interesting report of the recent International Rotary convention, at Dallas, Tex. A further report of the international meeting will be given to members of the two clubs by Attorney G. R. Empson, of Gladstone, governor of the Tenth Rotary district.

Mr. Groesbeck yesterday described the Dallas convention as one of the most interesting meetings he had ever attended. Representatives were in attendance at the convention from Rotary clubs of 26 countries of the world and the prediction was made at the meeting that within five years Rotary will be established in every nation of the world.

Mr. Groesbeck gave to members of the Escanaba and Gladstone clubs yesterday a general resume of the activities of the convention and at a later meeting District Gov. Empson will give a report on the various addresses of the Dallas meeting.

St. Anne's Players Score Big Hit With Hilarious Comedy

The young people of St. Anne's parish who took part in the home talent play "My Friend from India" at the three performances given Sunday afternoon and evening and Monday evening at St. Joseph's auditorium are deserving of a great deal of credit for the splendid program given.

The three act comedy comedy contained many funny situations and the audience was kept convulsed with laughter from start to finish. Every one played their parts to perfection. The auditorium was packed to the doors at each performance and every one spoke highly of the splendid entertainment given by this group of young people who stage a home talent play annually for the benefit of St. Anne's church. Financially the play was a success and those who were in charge of arrangements wish to thank the public for the generous patronage afforded them.

Lundin's orchestra played between acts Monday evening and Joseph Greenfield's Music Makers played Sunday evening. Those who took part in the play include Gust Trotter, Leo Brunelle, Joseph Albert Pepin, Bert Doucette, Edmund Godin, Paul Fillion, Raphael Richards, the Misses Irene Villemure, Blanche Fillion, Louise Poirier and Helen Fillion.

The scene was laid in the library of a rich New Yorker's home and the stage setting was unusually attractive.

Second Ladies Band Dance to be Held at South Park Tonight

The second dance of the series given at South Park under the auspices of the Escanaba Ladies' Band will be held this evening. The band will give a concert from eight to nine o'clock under the direction of Joseph Greenfield after which Charles Johnson's Wolverine orchestra will furnish the music for the dance program which will include a circular two step also a broom dance as several requests for these two numbers have been received by the members of the band.

The South park has been cleaned and everything has been arranged for the comfort of the guests. The cool breeze from the bay, the pleasant surroundings all combine to make the park an ideal place in which to dance during the summer months.

The dances will be given each week and the tickets which are being sold are good for any dance of the series. Tickets are on sale for ladies and gentlemen and a season ticket is being offered at a greatly reduced rate.

SO WEAK SHE COULDN'T WALK

Helped by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Gretna, La.—"After my first child was born I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for a run-down condition. I could not walk across my room at times, I was so weak. A friend induced me to take the Vegetable Compound. Since that time I have also taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Herb Medicine and the Pills for Constipation, and I have used Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash. I am a housekeeper and I am still taking the Vegetable Compound as a tonic to enable me to do my work."—Mrs. E. F. VICKNAIR, 829 Hancock Street, Canton, La.

Cars will be parked by a traffic officer and a member of the police department will be in attendance to assist the members in conducting the dances in an orderly manner.

The parking of cars last week caused many pleasing comments, the cars were parked on the west side of U. S. 35 facing the park and allowed standing room for children near the fence, and protecting them from any accidents which might occur on the crowded road.
